Civilian Production Starts With Defeat Of Germany

WASHINGTON — All controls over production, save those "absolutely essential necessary to assure the reduced measure of war production necessary to beat Japan" are to be removed immediately upon Germany's defeat.

After providing what is needed for the Japanese war, industry will have virtually a free hand in resuming civilian production — cars, washing machines, electric refrigerators or anything else.

A policy of allowing manufacturers to make "whatever people want," without direction from Washington,

King said the Army, Navy, major war agencies unanimously good on the program, intended provide "maximum employment as quickly as possible" after many guns quiet, but at the time protecting production necessary to fight Japan.

A reduction of about 40 percent war production within three months after Germany's defeat and the ing of 4,000,000 war workers for er jobs is anticipated.

Chairman Donald M. Nelson, WPB, has estimated that a 40 cent cut in war production would mean a 20 per cent increase in the output for civilians.

As partially explained by K the program will allow any manufacturer to use any plant and any terials not needed for war production to turn out anything.

WPB and other government agencies, he said, will "do everything within their powers to assist and encourage industry in resuming civilian production and maintaining employment through the use of the "know how" of its industry divisions and industry-labor advisory committees.

The production agency will maintain its organization and powers until it is certain that the war production program is adequate for victory over Japan."

Controls will be continued over such "tight" materials as lumber, textiles, and certain chemicals through a system of allocation designed to assure an equitable distribution based on essentiality.

The extreme emergency AAA preference rating will be retained, and there will be only one other, reserved exclusively for the military program during the war against Japan. All other production will be "unrated."

Increases Yield

Treatment of seed wheat to prevent decay of the kernels after planting and to control the stinking smut disease may increase the yield of grain as much as 25 per cent.

The War in Europe is over—but Complete Victory is not!

Actually, the war right now is at a most critical stage—which is just why we are sure YOUR support as never before, why they need you to help pay for the sum of materials of all kinds that will bring crushing defeat to our enemies in the Pacific that much sooner!

Of course, you have just done your part on the Home Front—and they have done theirs in many a grim, bloody battle and THEY aren't resting on what they've done before! They are going to carry the fight to the enemy wherever they can reach him in the Pacific every day—and your dollars are needed every day, too!

Surely you won't stop buying—won't let up now—when the chips are down!
