simple delight, pleasure, fun, sport, joy of life."

The kitchen Gladys Taber most recently remodeled (she writes an article every month for the HJ on this activity) belongs to Edna St. Vincent Millay. The impression received from reading is that Miss Millay knows her way around in the kitchen and washes the dishes. The reason this is remarkable is because some years ago (10 or 15) an article appeared about Miss Millay which gave the information that her big Dutch husband had given up his work in order to take over the management of their home so she could devote all her time to writing of poetry. There were servants, but if it was necessary, he could do the cooking.

Now the servants are gone. The two of them run the house. Miss Ta-

Mauney, Barnette Top High Cagers Scoring

Herman Mauney and Mary Lou Barnette continued to hold their top points lead over other team mates on their respective Central high school basketball teams during the past two weeks.

Mauney dumped in 15 points in the second Mountaineer victory over Charlotte Tech, in Charlotte Tuesday night, to run his string to 92. Barnette tops the girls team with 66.

Barnette has a game average of 13.2 and Mauney, 13.1.

Getting Them Early
The State of California has passed a law making obligatory for high school students instruction in the "art and obligations of automobile driving." North Carolina in its effort to have as good drivers behind the wheel as it has good highways might take note of this act. Helpful results would not be immediate, but the future would be taken care of.

There is a book in the library on handling a car—Youth at the Wheel.

There's an interesting article in the January American Girl on career possibilities for the girl who likes food and who has majored in Home Economics, but doesn't want to teach. Open to her is not only the well-worn field of medical dietetics, but the more fascinating ones of commercial food management, catering service, or operating a private tea room. This last brings to mind that delightful story of Anne H. Warner's in the January HJ, "Dinner For Two." This particular dinner originated in the tearoom of a young woman who operated it for the fun and satisfaction it gave her to feed people well. (Of course, her books never balanced). Our ardor was quite kindled over the possibilities suggested by both articles. Two essentials of man's needs are with us always—food and clothes. Interest in either won't let you down.

For The Map Minded
The library now owns an atlas—the Hammond New World, which contains historical, economic, political and physical maps as well as some general geographical information. Being of 1947 vintage, it should have authentic postwar European boundaries.

At Random
The library has been given the last six 1947 copies of the magazine Fortune. In one of these, the November one, is the much commented-upon article of John Chamberlain's called "The Business Man in Fiction." If you're interested in the subject authors choose to write about, here's something to read.

A hasty reading of a condensation of John Gunther's "Death Be Not Proud" left several thoughts for reflection. One of them especially was Frances Gunther's "What a joy life is! Why does no one talk of the joy of life? shout, sing, write of the joy of life? Looking for books to read with Johnny, and all of them sad, bitter, full of fear, hate, death, destruction, damnation, or at best resignation! No great books of enjoyment, no sense of great utter
