Tips Are Given On Heat Illness

"Heatsickness and sunstroke are responsible for the loss of many lives each summer," County Agent Ben Jenkins of the State College Extension Service commented today.
With high temperatures during the rush of harvesting, it is easy to be overcome by several forms of heat illness, he added.

The county agent explained that sunstroke results from prolonged exposure to the sun's rays. Heatstroke may result from excessive heat with out exposure to the sun. The effects are the same in both cases, and may in some instances prove fatal. Some symptoms are: hot and dry skin, face red and flushed, high temperature, intense headache, breathing hard and loud, pupils enlarged but of equal size, and unconsciousness.

The National Safety Council recommends the following suggestions for treating an individual stricken with sunstroke or heatstroke.

Move to a cool, shady place, strip to the underclothing, lay on back with head and shoulders raised.

Apply ice or cold cloths to head, cool the body gradually with a cool bath or wrap the person in a sheet and sprinkle with cool water. Gently rub limbs toward the heart.

After treating for several minutes, stop and observe patient. If skin becomes hot again, resume treatment.

If conscious, give cool drinks, not ice cold. Do not give stimulants.

Get the patient to a physician or a hospital as soon as possible. Continue treatment enroute.

The symptoms of heat exhaustion are quite different than those of sunstroke or heatstroke. With heat exhaustion the skin of the patient is cold and clammy. A simple rule may serve as a guide and avoid confusion regarding treatment:

Buick "Special" Out Next Week

DETROIT, Mich. — The latest creation in automobile body engineering and safety is unveiled in the Buick "Special," which greets the public next week.

Called a "Designer's Dream," the new Buick by Fisher introduces an eye-catching streamlined fender line 48 percent greater windshield area than the former "Special" body, and a rear seat that in one model is 12 inches wider.

Additional improvements over its predecessor, according to J. J. Cronin, vice president of General Motors and general manager of Fisher Body, include refinements in trunk lid operation, front seat adjustment and the introduction of this model of push-button door handles.

Offered in two body styles—a two door and four door — both models offer expanded curved safety-glass windshields which have nearly doubled the previous vision area while the rear windows have been increased 56 per cent in area.

The new safety plate glass windshield follows a scientifically plotted curve, so the driver's line of vision passes through the glass at approximately the same angle at either end as it does straight ahead. The front pillars have been slenderized and set back appreciably, with the narrowest profile in line with the driver's angle of vision.

The seat widths in both models have been increased, 12 inches in the rear seat of the four-door model. The front seat width in that model has been increased nearly three inches.

Additional leg room in the rear has been provided in both models, an extra six inches giving greater passenger comfort in the two-door model.

Fisher engineers again have designed new conveniences for the luggage compartment. A large deck lid is counterbalanced with strong springs which carry the burden of lifting the lid. A touch of the fingers will send it open. The springs which hold the lid open also retard its descent so that fingertips only are required to close it. A new-type lock, which closes automatically when the deck lid is shut without requiring key locking, also is now on this model. The key is needed only to unlock the deck lid. When the deck is unlocked the lid springs open a fraction of an inch, ready for finger-tip raising.

The former type door handle has been supplanted by a handsome push-button door lock requiring only pressure of a thumb to open the door.

NON REPETAT.

The customer asked to have her prescription refilled. But as the pharmacist looked up the prescription in his file, he found that the physician had marked it "non repetat."—do not repeat. The pharmacist didn't refill this prescription.

It is the pharmacist's business to fill prescriptions and usually he will gladly refill them, but there are certain instances where ethics or the law do not allow him to do so. One of these is the prescription marked "non repetat." The physician here specifically indicates that he wishes the patient to take only the quantity of medicine originally prescribed.

The pharmacist will carry out this instruction just as painstakingly as he does any other contained in the prescription. By so doing, he is acting in the interest of your safety and your health.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parks, Davis & Company, Detroit 32, Michigan.
