

Costumes Unique As Civic Clubs Battle In "Old Woman's" Encounter

The Kings Mountain Kiwanis club and the Kings Mountain Lions club clashed in an "old women's" softball game at City Stadium Monday night, in what proved to be some hilarious entertainment for the participants and spectators, and which resulted in several charley horses, sore necks, bruises and other minor ailments.

The result of the game was rather questionable.

The Herald scorekeeper tallied up 16 runs for each at the end of the regulation seven innings of play. But there was some divergence of opinion. The Kiwanians claimed the victory by 17-14, and the Lions, in turn, claimed the victory by 18-17.

There was some question as to whether these divergent claims were caused by club loyalty, or because neither aggregation felt physically able to continue an extra inning of play.

The clubs more or less agreed at the end of the fifth inning that the score was a 13-13 tie, and the Kiwanis outfit added four runs in the sixth. Determined to win the game, the Kiwanians placed a double quota of outfielders in the field during the seventh. Unable to get effective cooperation from the umpires, the Lions, not to be dismayed, tallied their claimed four runs via certain questionable sneaks. At least two Lions stealthily stole their ways to a base and proceeded to cross home plate.

The costumes of the participants showed considerable planning and effort and no little ingenuity, though some suspected that the several wives did some remote control work.

Rather generally conceded to be sporting the most unique costumes were Harold (Hula) Hunnicutt, who appeared in full hula skirt and the little bit else connected with the Hawaiian costume, and Carl (Carlotta) Mauney, who appeared in a flaming red sun suit. Best stunt of the game was pulled by Oscar McCarter, who, tripping on undergarments, removed them in full view of the audience while resting on third base.

Sam Stallings was credited with being among the prettiest performers, sporting a rather vivid blonde wig.

Charlie Moss started on the mound for the Lions but took to the showers under an 11-run Kiwanis barrage in the second inning. Charlie Warlick, dressed like a gypsy, followed and pitched with a general degree of success. J. C. Bridges started for the Kiwanians, with Amos Dean following.

Harold Coggins, Bunny Abbott, Arnold Kiser, Drace Peeler and Billy Fulton lashed out several long hits for the Kiwanis entry, while J. W. Webster, Carl Mauney, Jimmy Harris and Erle Powers were heavy hitters for the Lions.

"At least one permanent pasture on every farm in North Carolina is now the goal of the State College Extension Service" says S. H. Dobson, extension pasture specialist.

R. S. Dearstyne, head of the Poultry Department at State College, says North Carolina poultrymen could save thousands of dollars each year if they would do a careful and consistent job of culling their laying flocks.
