The Road Matter

As in all disagreements, there are bound to be many side issues to becloud the principal argument.

Thus the current struggle between Governor Scott and some members of the legislature over the bill to increase the share of the cities in the state's gasoline tax revenue has many side avenues of approach.

From published reports of the past several months, it would seem that Governor Scott was quite correct in charging the North Carolina League of Municipalities with "running out on its agreement," for the League's representatives had agreed to support the program of the governor and highway department, which would balance off the additional money to the cities with more tax,

The Herald is hopeful that the Powell bill, which will raise the road fund to be shared in by the cities to five million, without any increase in taxes, will be enacted.

For several years, long before Mr. Scott thought publicly, about running for governor, the Herald editorialized frequently concerning the need for more revenue for streets by the municipalities, pointing out that plenty of revenueproducing gasoline is burned on city streets. None of that revenue pays any cost of those particular streets.

The development of two years ago, when the state voted the $200 million rural roads issue, meant that city dwellers and business firms would pay, via the tax increase, the biggest share of the cost of these rural roads.

It would seem quite fair to increase the city dwellers' share of the gasoline tax take.

Our congratulations to T. W. Grayson, who has been elected president of the Kings Mountain Merchants Association for the coming year.

lective service are seldom the local hoards. They arise from the constant changing of regulation out of Washington, a result of constant pressuring from this group and that group.

The most recent foolish announcement from national selective service headquarters concerned urgings to graduating college students to obtain "essential". work. At the time, the local boards had not been informed that any work was "essential," as it undoubtedly could not be for young men just graduating from college. While they might qualify on the basis of knowledge, they could not, it seems, on the most important basis of experience.

Regardless of the supposed or actual grounds for disagreement between the Executive Board of the Woman's Club and Mrs. I. Ben Goforth, Sr., who formerly served the civic club dinners at the Woman's Club, it would appear that the Woman's Club Executive Board made a rather serious financial mistake in their expulsion action, having tossed out the winwod some $550 to $600 annually in rental revenue alone. The action must be characterized as hasty and improper at the very least, and it came as a considerable surprise to the civic clubs involved. If the purpose of the Woman's Club Executive Board was to obtain additional revenue, the board completely missed its mark. As sometime happens, it would appear, personal feelings got involved with the business at hand, seldom productive of desired results.

Annual February special services be-gin Sunday at First Presbyterian church. For the past several years, this church has brought to the community each February an outstanding minister, and, if reports are any indication, this year will be no exception. The accomplish-ments of Dr. B. Frank Hall indicate that all would do well to hear his messages next week.

Make a donation this week to the Boy Scout Fund drive. It would be amiss to fail to note the fact that the Boy Scout fund quota has not been hit by infla-tion. The amount asked is $2,000, same total asked last year and the year be-fore. It is all the more reason that the quota should be reached.

Election Season: Though there has been no formal action in the forthcoming city political season (election day is less than three months away), Kings Mountain is not without its politics. Mid-season elections were held at the high school last Friday, and, as this is written, they were still tally-ing the votes. The young folks did their politicking in a manner which would do their elders proud, with placards, handbills, and other drum-beatings designed to get out the vote and result in a successful campaign. There was no shortage of candidates, and almost all of them had their campaign managers to pull the strings to corral the votes.

Blackface Repeat: Friday and Saturday night, the Jaycees present their "Jaycee Minstrels of 1951", a new-model show featuring some of the same dark faces who delighted audiences last year. This department has seen no preview, but has the word of several participants that the show will be an even better one than was presented in 1950, if that is possible. It's hard to beat a localtalent minstrel for good entertainment and most folk are looking forward to hearing the "Darktown Strutters Ball" again.

The Weather: The weekend was a nice one-for the young folk-who finally found enough snow to play in. It would have been tragic had the first cold winter in three pass-ed without giving the young-sters a chance to try their hand at snow man building, or aimtesting with a well-packed snowball. But now that we've had it. I'd be quite satisfied if. the weatherman would make a point of disproving the old Groundhog Day theories. Mr. Groundhog most definitely saw his shadow, which would ordi-arily mean foul weather until mid-March. And speaking of the weather. I am indebted to Dr. J. E. Anthony. I suspect, for a copy of the Gasparilla edition of the Tampa Morning Tri-bune, under date of February 6. Though principal treatment was given the "invasion" of the city by the holidaying pirates, the story "Tamp Jumps from Snow to Beaming Sun in 56 Hours" rated front-page treat-ment. had it. I'd be quite satisfied if.

condition was revealed to General Assembly a week ago when the state board of education told the legislators: Unless the suggested budget is substantially increased by the General Assembly, it will be utterly impossible to operate the schools on their present levelr. It may even be impossible to avert a disastrous deterioration in the state school system . . . Unless the General Assembly substantially increases (the recommended appropriations) the public school line cannot be held. It will certainly buckle.

The question arises: What will he legislature do? It might more properly be asked: What can the legislature do?

Three courses of action suggest hemselves: First, the legislature might tell the school people that it has no more money for them and that they would have to do the best they can on the a-mount budgeted. It might be argued that by saying this the legislature would in reality be sidestepping the problem. In the second place, the legis-ature might divert funds from other institutions and activities, which would surely provoke a storm of protest. Or the legislature might raise axes or impose new ones. There is known to exist in the egislature a strong sentiment against increasing taxes for any purpose. With the national gov ernment committed to a course of prodigal spending, there is a growing conviction among the people that state governments should economize. Called upon to pay increased taxes, to practice self-denial and undergo hardships incident to an all-out war effort, the people are not willing to support their state government in the style to which it has been accustomed. However, we believe
