Brownie Scouts Home From Camp

Seven Kings Mountain Brownie Scouts are home from the two-week Brownie Camp at Camp Rotary, which was attended by 103 girls from ten surrounding communities.

Attending the camp from Kings Mountain were Joyce Plonk, Marian Plonk, Carol Jean Guter, Nancy Hovis, Margaret Jackson, Doris Dixon and Phyllis Bumgarner.

In spite of the hot weather the campers had fun on hikes, mountain climbing, and cookouts. Cool dips in the swimming pool helped to fight the weather. A ceremonial campfire during the first week and a Circus during the second week were highlight activities for the campers.

The program was carried out under the direction of an adult staff of 14 counselors aided by good cooks in the kitchen.

Staff members were Misses Mary Ann Dickson, Ellen Seaber, and Lillian Harding on the waterfront; Misses Nancy Knox, Aline Dall, Barbara Brawley, Martha Sibley, Betty Jean Holmes, Dorothy Hinton, Frances Hasty and June Martin in the Units; Miss Frances Thompson, Registered Nurse; Mrs. Ross, Dietitian; and Miss Jane Bachman, Program Director. The camp is under the direction of Miss Frances Keating, Executive Director for the Pioneer Area Council of Girl Scouts.

Four weeks of camp for Senior and Intermediate Girl Scouts began Monday.

North Carolina is one of six Southern States to be visited on group tours to be sponsored by the Sixth International Grassland Congress in late August and early September.

Each kind of tree, shrub, or plant has a best time and method for propagating it. We cannot discuss all of them here but there are a few plants that are most successfully propagated at this season of the year.

For example, many gardeners in Eastern North Carolina are growing the evergreen species of azaleas. Of course it is easy to purchase azaleas from the nurseries, but that will take money and it is not very difficult to grow your own if you are willing to give them some care. Azaleas may be easily propagated by cuttings taken from the plant in July. The cuttings should be made of the present season's wood, about four inches long, after the base of the new stem has become partially matured.

The best medium in which to root azaleas is a mixture of half pure sand and half peat moss. This material may be put in a special frame or shallow box to a depth of about six inches, in a place where the frame can be shaded and watered when necessary.

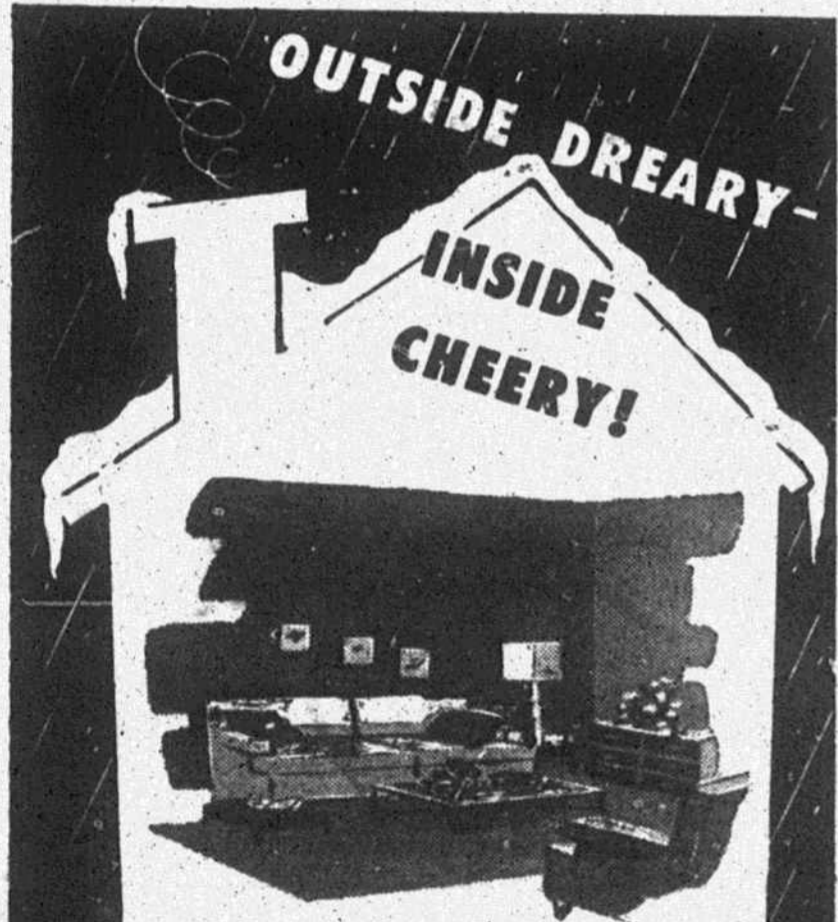

The leaves should be stripped from the lower half of the cutting, the basal end cut with a sharp knife, and dipped in a prepared powder. Then the cuttings are inserted in the sand and peat mixture about half their length and firmed. They may be set close together in rows. Strict attention must be paid to shading and watering. In a few weeks roots will develop on most of the cuttings and they should be potted up or transplanted to a cold frame where they can be protected until ready to set out in a permanent place.

The peach is another plant that must be propagated at this time of the year. The peach will not come true to variety from seed; therefore if you have any peach seedlings it is best to graft a known variety upon them. Since the peach cannot be grafted successfully in winter like the apple, it must be budded during July or August. Contact your county agent at once for instructions or bulletins on budding peach trees.

Pecans are also budded at this time of year. A pecan does not come true to variety from seed. About 330,000 fewer workers were employed on farms in 1951 than in 1950. Indications are that the average number of workers on farms in 1952 will be even smaller.

Poultry specialists at State College say that when broilers fail to grow uniformly, the poultryman should try to find the cause of the trouble and, if possible, correct it.
