Central Methodist CHURCH NEWS
By Mrs. Baxter Payseur

On Sunday morning a proposed church school addition was presented to the membership for a vote by all members over 18 years of age. The plans were drawn up in detail by James L. Beam, architect, and the building will provide an additional 3600 sq. ft. of floor space, providing for rearrangement and remodeling of the 3120 sq. ft. of existing space. The plans were approved in a secret ballot vote.

Vacation Church School begins Monday for two weeks for all children up to 15 years of age. Miss Mozelle Masters, new D. R. E., will assume her duties at that time.

The Book of Romans will be the subject of the Wednesday evening Prayer Service for the next 4 weeks.

Poultry Tips Given Forsyth Area Farmer

Almost all of North Carolina's spring baby chicks are large enough by this time to be on green grazing crops. This offers the poultryman an opportunity to greatly reduce his pullet feed bill during the growing season, according to W. G. Andrews.

Andrews, poultry specialist for the N. C. State College Agricultural Extension Service, says recently completed experiments show that a third more clover than grasses was consumed by grazing pullets. This would give clover, or the legumes a more favorable place for grazing, both from the standpoint of consumption and also the fact that clovers are higher in protein than grasses, according to the poultry specialist. One acre of Ladino clover or its equal should provide ample grazing for 300 pullets, Andrews says.

Using well-bred, production-type birds, a goal of 100 eggs per hen during the first six months of production should be set, Andrews says. This is a practical goal, he adds, as evidenced by the results obtained on six farms in one North Carolina county which reported for a six-month period, beginning September 1, 1952. An average of 362 hens per farm produced 106 eggs per bird during this reporting period.

With hot weather already here, Andrews suggests poultrymen keep in mind that a bountiful supply of fresh, cool water, good growing mash, grain and succuent green feed should be provided the growing pullets if they are to be expected to grow into the best replacement stock, capable of producing the largest harvest of eggs.

North Carolina's 1953 lettuce production is currently estimated at 195,000 crates (4 to 6 doz.). If this holds true production will be the greatest since 1931 when 201,000 crates were produced.

In 1952 26.6 million cows were on U. S. farms. Their value was estimated at $5 billion.

North Carolina's dairy industry output has more than doubled since 1940.

A 9 per cent increase in North Carolina's watermelon acreage this year is predicted.
