Five Outdoor Dramas In State

RALEIGH—More than a quarter million vacationists saw them last summer, and North Carolina's summer outdoor dramas are prepared for larger audiences this year.

There are five of them — three in the Great Smoky and Blue Ridge Mountains, one on Roanoke Island and one in the Piedmont.

A four of the "Variety Vacationland" outdoor drama circuit leads to some of the most famous scenic and recreational areas in America.

Production dates for the dramas have been announced as follows: "The Lost Colony" Manteo, June 27 through September 6.

The outdoor drama, a relatively new form of theatrical art with a wide appeal for spectators of all ages, was pioneered in North Carolina.

Information about the outdoor dramas is available from the State Travel Bureau, Raleigh, North Carolina, and may also be obtained by writing directly to the drama offices.

Wildlife Area Set Up At Croatan

The N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission and the U. S. Forest Service have reached a cooperative agreement to set up a wildlife management area in Croatan National Forest, according to a joint announcement by the two agencies.

At a meeting in Lexington recently the Wildlife Commission took action to participate in the setting up of the 16,200 acre area lying west of Great Lake and including 2,600 acres of the lake.

Proposed work plans for habitat improvement for both game and fish as well as improved access to hunters and anglers. Pending a detailed survey of game and fish populations, the area may be closed to the public for a few years to allow wildlife populations to increase to harvestable numbers.

Overflow game on National Forest land surrounding the area will be available to public hunting under state law and regulations. Intensive work within the area is expected to improve hunting for a considerable radius around the management area.

At present the area includes 11 percent of the National Forest land, and if enlargements of the area are necessary such enlargements will not go beyond 25 percent.

None of the roads presently leading into the management area will be closed, but newly constructed roads on the area will be closed with gates in order to facilitate protection and management of game species.

Plans indicate that the new management area will be operated on the same basis as those in National Forest areas in the western part of the state. An effort will be made to improve fishing and waterfowl conditions in Great Lake by controlling water levels and by other means.

The Croatan Wildlife Management area is a part of a statewide program of cooperation with the U. S. Forest Service and other agencies in wildlife restoration.
