Clothing Specialist Gives Helpful Hints On Making Original Clothing Accessories

If you enjoy being original and using your own creative streak, you'll find lots of enjoyment in making many of your own clothing accessories.

According to Mary Em Lee, State College extension clothing specialist, accessories that show good taste are often way out of line as far as price is concerned. By making your own you'll have a lot of fun and at the same time save yourself considerable expense.

Miss Lee says that you can find any number of patterns for attractive neckwear, bags, hats, and gloves at most department stores. Next time you are browsing through pattern books, pay special attention to the accessory sections.

Accessories are very expressive of certain moods and personalities, explains Miss Lee. They can be dressy, tailored, feminine, exotic and very dramatic according to the wishes of the wearer. Accessories can completely change the character of the suit or dress—they can "dress it up" or "dress it down" as the occasion dictates.

The use of artificial flowers as an accessory comes and goes with the seasons. This spring, artificial flowers are abundant—they're even being fashioned into earrings. Here again you can save money by making your own. Plan these earrings to go with a specific dress or outfit.
