

Ringling a World Prayer for Peace

Japan's permanent observer to the United Nations, Ambassador Rensho Sawada, strikes the Bell of Peace which was donated to the world organization in the name of the Japanese people. The bell was cast from bits of metal, coins and medals contributed by friends from sixty nations to the Japanese Association for the United Nations which made the gift. The 256-pound bell which stands three feet, three inches tall, is housed in a structure made of cypress wood, and is patterned after an ancient Shinto shrine. Benjamin Cohen, right, U.N. Assistant Secretary-General for Public Information, accepts the symbolic gift on behalf of the United Nations.

Phone Answering Device Available

An answering device enabling a called party to receive telephone messages even in his absence is available to residence and business subscribers of Kings Mountain. E. F. Farris, manager of Southern Bell Telephone Company, said yesterday.

The automatic answering set, about the size of a portable typewriter, is provided in conjunction with the usual telephone set where desired. The device is so connected to the line that normal use of the telephone by the subscriber is not interfered with. But when he is away, the set is automatically set to work by an incoming call. It gives the calling party a message previously recorded by the subscriber, then re-
