

A WINNER'S DISPLAY — Larry Hinson, who captured the annual Golden Leaf Golf Tournament in Douglas, Ga., last Sunday, looks over the large collection of trophies and silver he has won during the past four years. The 21-year-old golfer added the silver service at the bottom of his collection by winning the Golden Leaf.

Coaches Say

Kenny Plonk, 255-pounds; Eddie Bridges, 220-pounds; Carl Weisener, 265-pounds; Charles Green, 205-pounds. Bates reports that the ends are not tough enough, and if they come around the line will be well stabilized with the exception of center. Bates said that center is the biggest question mark, because there is no depth at all at that position.

"Skeeters" Try Again At Gaffney

GAFFNEY, S. C.—The "skeeters" will try again Thursday night at Cherokee Speedway in a 50-lap main event postponed last week because of rain. Over 4,100 paying customers were on hand to witness the running of the hemi-powered engines mounted in sleek 1932 Ford and other style chassis for the first running of its kind in this area.

FROM HOSPITAL — Coley Freeman was discharged Monday from Baptist hospital at Winston Salem where he had been hospitalized for five weeks following surgery.

The fast moving cars, which have measured horsepower around 700, feature aluminum wings which are mounted along the top of the car. The wings stabilize the small framed cars as they zoom around the track at lightning fast speeds. Drivers from several eastern seaboard states are slated to seek the $1,800-$2,000 purse which is being offered.

Basic Booze — College courses in "Basic Bourbon," "Introduction to Martinis," and "Sippin' Scotch" should be taught on the college level, top college and university administrators in California have been told.

College administrators should adopt a forthright policy of teaching youngsters how to drink, Ira H. Cisin, research sociologist from Washington, D.C., says.

"Drinking can be dangerous, and the young deserve to be instructed in its uses just as they are taught how to swim and drive a car," Cisin contends.

One Missing

Those jokes about parents with big families losing a child without noticing it came true for a friend, Neb., father of nine.

Dad called the roll after a family shopping trip to Lincoln, 40 miles away, and discovered a 3-year-old was missing.

A telephone call located the tot safe with the Lincoln Police Department. She had been left stranded in downtown Lincoln.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

'Horn In West' Players Follow Mayes' Example For Relaxation

BOONE — Cast members of "Horn in the West" have novel ways of passing a sultry summer afternoon in Boone. The latest: shooting the Shulls Mills rapids of the rocky Watauga River via innertubes.

The tubing fad may seem outlandish to the landlubber, but it combines the fun of a cool swim in a chilly mountain stream with the excitement of a roller coaster ride.

With a flotilla of innertubes, the "Horn in the West" players played for hours. After a few cold spills down the rapids, the actors developed their "tubing technique" and soon all could maneuver through the current without trouble.

Henry Gaston of Belmont, member of the drama's chorus, and Appalachian State Teachers College senior Clay Osborne of North Wilkesboro, the show's "Daniel Boone" understudy, acted as tubing instructors for the afternoon frolic. Actresses Montez King of Valle Crucis, Sally Thomason, coed at Greenville's East Carolina College, and Dotty Kennard, a rising senior at Pfeiffer College near Albemarle, proved to be the outdoor drama's most intrepid females as they braved the Watauga's waters rushing north. Taking a breather from tubing, the cast members followed Kings Mountain native Bud Mayes' example of plopping himself down in the middle of the rapids, with a big river rock on the mid-section. Mayes, the 250 pound alternate "Preacher Sims" says that 15 minutes in the rapids is better than a professional massage.

Upon entering East Germany through the Berlin wall, all persons must declare currency and account for all expenditures made in the Soviet zone.

Your heart and blood play an important part in "thermal regulation" which helps keep you warm in cold weather and cool in hot weather, says the North Carolina Heart Association. Because the body's built-in thermostat machinery takes time to adjust to weather extremes, you should be careful about jumping from one extreme to the other. Make the change gradually, if possible. Or, if you find yourself caught in a sudden change, try to rest before becoming active. This will give your body time to adjust to the different weather environment.
