Three Issues To Be Voted

Three issues affecting cotton and one affecting peanuts will be voted on Tuesday, Nov. 23, by North Carolina farmers.

The issues are:
1. Whether to have marketing quotas for the next three years.

Cotton — 1. Whether to have marketing quotas for the 1966 crop.

2. Whether to allow transfer of acreage allotments by lease or sale outside of the county.

3. Whether an assessment of 15 cents a bale will be made for the next three years to continue the support of the North Carolina Cotton Promotion Association.

Polling places will be designated by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Eligible to vote are those who shared in the 1965 crop or who would have shared except their entire allotment was released (in the case of cotton).

Each issue will require the approval of two-thirds of those voting to be adopted.

The issue which would allow the sale or lease of cotton allotments outside the county is a new one for Tar Heel farmers.

Dr. Charles Brooks, extension economist at North Carolina State University at Raleigh, explained that provisions for this vote was made in the new farm program recently signed into law by President Johnson.

Votes on this issue will be counted by county. An example: If two-thirds of the voters in X county approve the issue, and less than two-thirds of the voters in Y county give the issue their approval, then farmers in X county, who can already transfer allotments in the county, will be able to sell or lease allotments on an adjusted yield basis outside of their own county. Growers in Y county may sell or lease allotments within their own county, as provided by law, but may not sell or lease their allotments outside the county.

On the assessment issue, cotton producers will be voting to continue the work of North Carolina Cotton Promotion Association. This will be the fourth such referendum since 1957. Each of the previous votes has been overwhelmingly in favor of the self-assessment program.

North Callahan

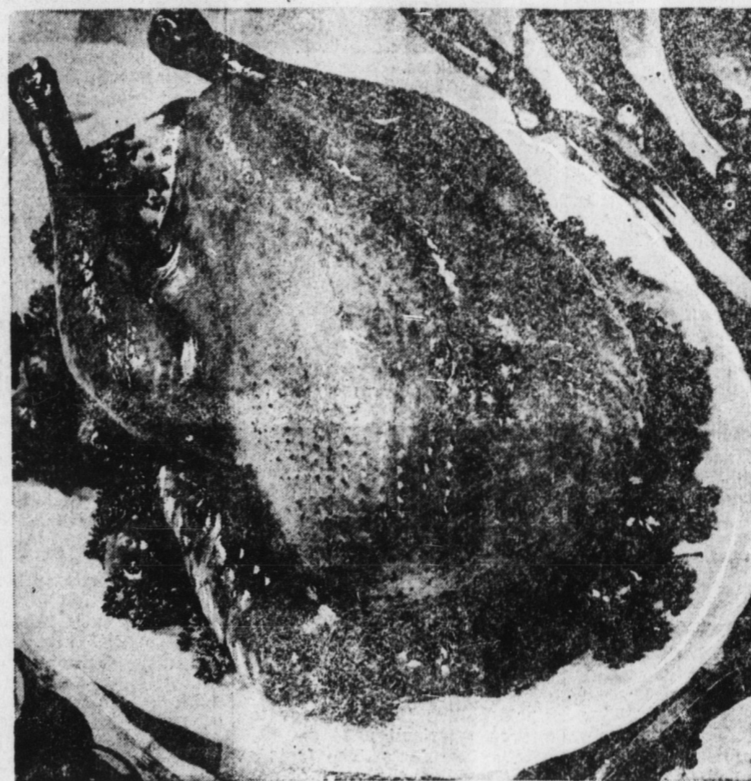

Excitement was observed not long ago. This was a meeting of a group of Wall Street brokers of the 1929 stock market crash who celebrated the anniversary in a room decorated with newspaper headlines from the day of the debacle. This year, the men agreed, has been their best year since they have been in this tricky business.
