Job Seekers Survey Set

Local residents will help provide information on the causes of unemployment nationally when they answer questions in the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey during the week of November 15, it was announced today by Joseph R. Norwood, Director of the Bureau's regional office at Charlotte.
Census Bureau interviewers will be asking job seekers why they are looking for work; for example, did they lose or quit their previous jobs, drop out of school, or what?
This question will be in addition to the usual ones asked each month in the survey about employment and unemployment, which supply the information for national figures released by the U. S. Department of Labor. The September survey indicated that unemployment, at 2.9 million, was down 450,000 from a year ago. Since September 1964, the number of unemployed persons seeking full time work has been cut by 490,000 to 2.2 million.
Families interviewed in the survey here and in 356 other sample areas in the country are chosen to provide representation in the sample for all types of areas and all major groups of the Nation's population. They are selected by address rather than by name, and the information they contribute to the survey remains confidential in the Census Bureau's records. Only statistical totals are published.
Census Bureau interviewers who will visit local families in November include:
Mrs. Frances C. Hedden, 805 Meadowbrook Road, Kings Mountain, N. C. 28086.
Fourteen million smallpox vaccinations were given in 1964 in the U. S.
