Agriculture In Action

FRESH OR PROCESSED?
The day might soon arrive when your youngsters will ask you if peas really grow in a can.

Even today, many a little one wouldn't recognize a pea in its pod. Mom is the cause of it all. She doesn't bring home fresh produce for her family much anymore. Processed fruits and vegetables are winning her over. The Economic Research Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture notes a dramatic shift in consumer interest in the supermarket shelf competition between fresh and processed vegetables.

In 1930, almost 78 per cent of the fruit consumed by each American was purchased in fresh form. Processed fruits and juices accounted for only 22 per cent of all the fruit bought over the counters.

By 1964, processed fruits and juices had captured half the market. They were bought in canned, frozen or dried form. A similar history is recorded in the vegetable annals. Fresh vegetables in 1930 comprised about two-thirds of total per capita use. Processed items made up the remaining third.

In 1964, processed and fresh vegetables wound up in a dead heat, with the exception of such items as lettuce and escarole. Where there was a choice between the fresh and processed forms, though, the fresh items were losing ground rapidly.

People who claim to know the housewife's motivations say convenience is the drawing card which is winning friends for processed foods. In some cases, consumers say they simply prefer the taste of processed product. In addition, processed foods are available throughout the year, and are fairly consistent in quality. The ladies really seem to be

Lithium Notes Sales Increase

Lithium Corporation of America today announced increased sales and earnings for the first quarter of 1966. Sales of lithium products during the period amounted to $1,595,000 and earnings from lithium operations amounted to $120,000 before reserve for deferred taxes, compared with sales of $1,394,000 and earnings of $114,000 before tax reserve during the first quarter of last year.

Operations of LCA's wholly subsidiary, Beryllium Metals & Chemicals Corporation, were continued on a reduced basis during the quarter, and BerMet's net loss for the period amounted to $25,000 compared with $37,000 during the first quarter of 1965.

During the quarter the combined net earnings of LCA and BerMet, after tax reserve, amounted to $36,000 compared with $3,000 during the first quarter of 1965.

Harry D. Feltenstein, Jr., president of LCA, reported that the company's research concerned with the production of potash, sodium sulfate, and lithium from Great Salt Lake had continued satisfactorily during the period and that construction of new evaporation ponds at the lake by LCA and its partner, Salztet-furth, A.G., of West Germany, was proceeding on schedule.

According to Mr. Feltenstein, the company's expenses for the sales promotion of lithium hypochlorite and for research were at an unusually high level during the first quarter of 1966, accounting for most of the increase in Selling, Research, and General and Administrative expenses during the period.

serious about spurning fresh foods. May the day never come when they'll prefer processed men to those who tend to be a bit fresh.

Cotton Farmers To Go To Polls

Cotton farmers in Cleveland County will vote this month to decide whether they want to be able to sell or lease their cotton allotments outside the county. Charles J. Hamrick, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, has announced. The referendum on the question will be conducted by mail during the period May 16 through May 25. Ballots may also be delivered by hand to the ASCS county office.

The only question to be decided by the balloting is whether upland cotton allotments may be transferred during the next 3 years to other farms outside the county which are owned or controlled by someone else. Such transfers may be made by sale or by lease. In no case may transfers be made outside the State.

An affirmative vote by at least two-thirds of the county's cotton farmers who vote will permit such transfers for the next three upland cotton groups, 1967-69. A referendum on the same question was conducted last fall throughout the Cotton Belt, and growers in 349 counties at that time approved the allotment transfers.

The vote this May will be held only in counties which disapproved such transfers in last fall's vote.

The upcoming vote by mail marks a first in program administration. Farmers previously have been able to vote by mail in annual ASC committeeman elections, but the method has never before been used in a commodity program referendum. A ballot will be mailed to all cotton producers on record in the county, together with information describing the program's purpose and operation. Any cotton producer who has a question about the referendum or about who is eligible to vote, is urged to get in touch with the ASCS County Office.

Long before Everett Jordan sought public office he showed an active interest in the Democratic Party. He gave to the Democratic Party unselfishly of his time and energies.

The Democrats of North Carolina recognized him as a true leader, and he served as Chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee under two distinguished Governors, Scott and Umstead, from 1949 to 1954, at which time he was selected as Democratic National Committeeman. He served in this post until he was appointed to the Senate in April, 1958, by Governor Hodges. He was elected by the people to serve the remainder of the late Senator W. Kerr Scott's term in 1958, and re-elected in 1960.

Senator Jordan was born in Ramseur, N. C., the son of the Reverend and Mrs. Henry H. Jordan. He attended Rutherford College and Trinity, and in 1924 married Katherine McLean of Gastonia. They have three children and eight grandchildren.

After serving with the U. S. Army in Europe in World War I, Senator Jordan began work as a sweeper in a Gastonia textile mill where he worked up through the ranks to become superintendent. In 1927 he came to Saxapahaw as a young man and organized a textile company and re-opened an abandoned cotton mill. The Jordans still live in the village of Saxapahaw, near Burlington.

Senator Jordan has always taken an active interest in civic and church affairs. He has taught the Adult Bible Class in the Saxapahaw Methodist Church and has been a member of the Board of Stewards since 1927. In recognition of over 40 years of active service to the Boy Scouts of America, he was presented the coveted Silver Beaver Scout Award. He has been Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Alamance County Hospital for 21 years. He was a member of the N. C. Medical Care Commission from 1945 to 1951 and a member of the N. C. Peace Officers Benefit and Retirement Commission from 1943 to 1951. He is also a member of the Board of Trustees of Elon College, Duke University, and American University, and a Shriner.
