Gardner-Webb Is Approved Testing Center

BOILING SPRINGS — Gardner-Webb College will begin functioning August 1 as an authorized General Educational Development testing center for Cleveland County and the surrounding area. It was announced today by Rush Hamrick Jr., chairman of the Shelby Chamber of Commerce Education committee.

Persons seeking to take the GED test can do so by calling or writing Mr. Worth Bridges at Gardner-Webb College, Boiling Springs, N. C. (434-2211). Bridges said all testing will be done by appointment, as required by the state.

The testing center is the result of an active campaign by the Shelby Chamber to have a local GED testing center to administer the high school equivalency test and certificates to adults who have not completed a high school education.

The Gardner-Webb center will serve Cleveland County and the surrounding area. Bridges states that no formal schooling is required to pass the high school equivalency exam, so long as an adequate test score is made. The test costs $10 per person and lasts an estimated 10 hours. The state requires at least two separate sittings to take the test. Most colleges in North Carolina accept the GED test as equal to a high school diploma and local industries accept a GED score in lieu of a high school diploma as an employment requirement.

Should a person take the GED test and fail, he or she may retake the test in six months. The GED test concentrates on the subjects knowledge of the English language, basic mathematics, U. S. History and government, and some literature, states Bridges.

Hamrick stresses the importance of the GED testing to local industries. He states that since the Cleveland County unit of Gaston College is now teaching a number of students in basic reading, writing and arithmetic and many others are working on high school equivalency through the Cleveland County Learning Laboratory that there will be more and more requests for such testing.

Cleveland ranks as one of the areas in the state having the highest number of applicants for the GED test. Before the official center at Gardner-Webb, the University of North Carolina at Charlotte was the closest area center. In 1965, statistics revealed that 44 per cent of those passing the GED test in Charlotte were persons from Cleveland County.

Sunday's Service

From a one-room frame building the church grew and under the leadership of the Rev. George F. Kirby the present plant was erected and the cornerstone laid in 1905. Besides the church proper, this building contained Sunday School classrooms and assembly rooms. The edifice was dedicated in 1914. A dwelling that stood on the church property served as a pastor's home until the present parsonage, an eight-room brick veneer building, was erected during the pastorate of the Rev. J. E. Thompson in 1924. A modern educational plant was dedicated in 1959.

Mrs. Patterson's history recalls some of the pioneer settlers of the community during the time the church was organized. In the early part of 1874, I. Walton Garrett and family, Richard Garrett and family, Captain and Mrs. R. S. Suggs and Bennett R. Willeford, Sr., came from Edgecombe county, bought property here and erected store buildings. The Garretts operated a general merchandise store and Captain Suggs operated the drug store.

They were Methodists. Mrs. Patterson recalled and attended the nearest Methodist church which was El Bethel. These families and Dr. and Mrs. James Wright Tracy were among the church's first charter members. A circuit rider (the preacher) visited in the homes of the few members to minister to their spiritual needs, as church services were held only once a month.

The members were small in number and overcame many obstacles to complete their one-room frame building which stood on the corner of Piedmont Avenue and Mountain street and served as a house of worship for 30 years.

First organist for the church was Katie Garrett, niece of the Suggs, who at the age of 12 could hardly reach the pedals. The Children's Missionary Society was called the "Light Bearers" and was organized in 1895 along with the Women's Missionary Society.

The history recalls that "an efficient board of stewards, a number of whom are younger men of the church, have charge

Films Listed For Men's Group

Three new films have been added to the North Carolina Adult Film Project and are now available from the local public library; they were selected as possible programs for men's groups. Any group may use these sixteen millimeter films at no charge other than postage upon two or more weeks prior request at the library. Films from this cooperative statewide library collection may not be used in elementary and secondary schools nor may they be used where an admission is charged. The three films are:

AS TALL AS THE MOUNTAINS—a documentary account lasting a half hour showing the physical and limits to which boys enrolled in the Outward Bound School in Colorado are pushed.

MUNRO—a prize winning cartoon that tells the story of Munro—a four-year-old draftee.

SPORTS CARS: THE RAGE TO RACE—a half hour television documentary showing the races at Monte Carlo. An interview with racer, Sterling Moss, offers some good tips on competitive organized racing and points to the highway racer as the poorest driver of all.

of the financial work of the church. Youth of the church were also active. Mrs. Joe Thompson (the former Irma Willeford) recalls that inside the cornerstone were records of the early youth activities of Central Methodist young people.

During the pastorate of Rev. George D. Herman definite steps were taken to secure a large lot and plans made for a building which would meet the needs of a growing congregation and Sunday School.

Forty-five ministers have served the Central Methodist pastorate since its organization.
