Women Treasure Glasswear Gifts

RALEIGH—Beautiful glassware is a gift most any woman will treasure, believes Mrs. Lillie Little, extension housing and house furnishings specialist, North Carolina State University.

Not all of us can become experts at selecting quality glassware, she concedes. But there are some terms that may help you distinguish one type of glassware from another.

For example, lead or flint glass is clear, sparkling and has a bell-like tone when you tap it. It is expensive and beautiful. Lime glass is used for inexpensive tableware. Although low in cost, it has high durability. Hand-blown glass is the name applied to glassware made when air is blown into a bubble of molten glass. This glass is shaped by the glass blower's hands and by the control of his breath. This process is used in making fine stemware.

Hand-pressed glass results when the molten glass is pressed into a cast-iron mold where it is shaped and patterned at the same time. The mold gives its shape to the flexible glass. The hand-pressed method is used for intricate shapes and decorations in glass, Mrs. Little observes.

Machine-made glass is what its name implies—glass made by machine instead of individual craftsmen. The machines cannot duplicate the artistry and craftsmanship of the hand process of shaping and decorating but they do an attractive job. Machines are used for quantity production of tumblers and tableware. Mrs. Little points out.

A piece of sparkling glassware, beautifully formed, needs little or no additional decoration, the specialist says. However, there are a number of processes used to add decorative qualities. These include the addition of color or bubbles, the application of enamels or metals, such as gold, platinum and silver; frosting, etching and cutting. Decoration usually adds to the cost.

What type of glassware you choose will depend, in part, upon whether you dine formally or informally and the design of other table appointments. Simple china and plain silver suggest simplicity in glassware design, the specialist asserts.

The Easter Seal Society nationwide provides programs and facilities for handicapped children and adults worth more than $25 million. The North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults operates Camp Easter-in-the-Pines, a specialized facility worth $150,000.

Newspapers Produce Light And Information. Their Absence Results In Darkness.

Correct information is invaluable to a free people and for keeping a free people free.

Few other nations of the world are as fortunate as the United States, which, through the wisdom of their forefathers, is legatee of a heritage of freedom of speech, of assembly, of religious worship, and of the press.

Maintaining of these freedoms has not always been easy, but they have nevertheless been maintained through the years.

A free press is the cornerstone of the others. Without the dissemination of the news — factual information gathered by trained professional newsmen — the other freedoms would soon be abrogated in practice, if not in the text of the United States Constitution.
