

Winn-Dixie Stores Are Observing "South Carolina Products Week"

"South Carolina Products Week" is being observed to emphasize the fact that the state's approximately 3,000,000 citizens are eating better today than at any time in history—and at a relatively lower cost.

Hundreds of Winn-Dixie supermarkets throughout the South are observing the eighth annual Dixie Products event April 29 - May 4. Full displays of home-grown products are being shown in the stores.

"Producers of South Carolina farm products are to be highly commended for their improved production and marketing practices," said G. R. Kay, manager of the Greenville division.

"Recognition is also deserved by growers, processors, handlers, markets, marketing organizations and food distributors and retailers in our state, who are continuously striving to put more and better foods on the family dinner table at competitive prices.

"Sustained cooperation is needed from all state and federal agencies, producers and their organizations, and all elements of the food distribution system in order to maintain and insure free enterprise in the economies of food production and market."

The expanding part Winn-Dixie plays in this progress is shown in figures released by Mr. Kay. The company last year spent: $88,214,746 on salaries, $17,145,251 on occupancy costs, $3,620,225 on local taxes (excluding social security taxes), $12,055,570 on advertising and $7,459,224 on utilities.

The broad scope of "South Carolina Products Weeks," however, is found in the amount of food sold by all Winn-Dixie stores during a single year: 1,720,200,000 pounds of groceries and 1,397,100,000 pounds of perishables.

"Economists tell us that food is more of a bargain today than ever before," Mr. Kay added. "Not many people realize just how low the profits of a supermarket really are.

"Locally-grown products, which cut down on transportation costs, make this low profit margin possible and permit us to pass on our savings to our customers.

"Similarly, by using South Carolina-grown products, we are helping improve the economy of the areas in which we operate. It is a tried system that is making us healthier and more prosperous South Carolinians at a cost that is lessening."
