McDaniel, Bridges, and Allen round out the rest of the Mountaineer team. McDaniel is having trouble with his game this season but he has one more year to make good for the Mountaineers. Bridges has played in the number three position for the Mountie boys this year. His position on the team does not indicate his abilities as a golfer. Allen is the last player on the team. This year being his first at the sport. He is only a junior and will be counted on next year.

Scott Cloninger, the number nine man on the team, is the only challenger left. He is the player who keeps the other members going. He has played in several matches thus far this season and he will be counted on next year by his teammates to give them their much needed depth.

Q. My husband will be 65 and retire next year. We have managed to save about $20,000 in three mutual funds, $10,000 in 3M stock, and $6,000 in cash. Should we sell the 3M stock and put it (and part of our cash) into a blue chip stock that pays better dividends or into another mutual fund? We will have $360 income per month plus the income from the funds.

A. You have a fairly sensible program. I really see no reason to sell your 3M stock. It has had a fine growth record. If you sell, you will have to pay capital gains taxes. I would at least wait until your husband has retired so that you will be in a better income tax position. At that time, you will have double exemptions ($1,200 each) plus having less taxable income.

Q. Since you've shown the ability to pick one good stock, I'd be inclined to suggest that you use your 3M money and part of your cash to buy additional stocks directly. Split the total into three parts and invest in a good utility, a major oil company and a high-yield blue-chip industrial.

Q. Five of us who recently graduated from college are interested in forming an investment club. We have settled in different cities, so we would probably let one of us do all the buying and selling. Some of us favor working in commodities rather than stocks. We have all been close friends for a long time, so we could accept any loss without friction. We were thinking in terms of $50 per month and withholding investment for a few years until we had an appreciable amount to work with. Would you advise us?

A. I can't think of a better way to put friendship to the test. In our experience, few groups have been able to operate successfully when the membership is widely separated. If you decide to go ahead, your second major problem is to decide on a consistent investment philosophy and then stick to it. I am sending you an NAIC manual and suggest you adopt the philosophy outlined there.

It is not necessary to hold your money until you have a sizable amount. You will take most of your losses during your early experiences while you are learning—you will lose less working with a small amount of money than a large one enduring this learning period.

Also, if you are thinking that it costs more to buy stock in odd lots, I would point out that the increased commission on odd lots is not that prohibitive. If you wait five years to make your first investment and if we have 2 to 3% inflation during that period, you may well wind up paying 10 to 15% more.

Q. Would you suggest a portfolio for a prudent man?

A. I don't suggest individual stocks. Even if I did, it would depend on who the "prudent man" was. In the copy of "Better Investing" enclosed, you will find a model portfolio for investment clubs (that's a model for an Investment Club, not an ideal for everyone.)

Good Grooming Essential Factor

RALEIGH—Now that school is almost over, many high school boys and girls will be looking for summer jobs in an office, a camp, a department store, a restaurant, or other places.

How that boy or girl looks during the interview—his personal appearance—will influence the prospective employer, reminds Mrs. Ruby Miller, extension clothing specialist, North Carolina State University.

If two applicants for a job had equal abilities and comparable training and experience, an employer would certainly choose the more attractive, better groomed person, she adds.

Good grooming includes the selection of becoming, appropriate clothing and accessories, good taste in the selection and use of cosmetics, as well as clean hands, manicured nails, shining hair and clean teeth.

"Not only does being well-groomed help to create a favorable impression on others," Mrs. Miller says, "but it contributes to the feeling of poise and self-assurance on the part of the person applying for the job."

Whether the job interview takes place on the school campus, in a local business office, or out of town, every effort should be made to put the best foot forward.

Appropriate clothing should be an important consideration. The garment worn for the job interview should be relatively simple in style and design, but attractive and becoming to the wearer, the specialist believes.

It is by no means necessary to buy a complete new outfit for the occasion, Mrs. Miller stresses. To do so may result in an unwise expenditure of money if time is limited and the purchase is not carefully considered in relation to the present wardrobe.

It is also true that some persons feel more comfortable and relaxed in clothing they have worn previously, she says.

An inexpensive dress, or young man's suit, properly fitted and well accessorized looks better than an expensive one, poorly fitted and poorly accessorized, Mrs. Miller notes.

Clothing should be clean, pressed and in excellent repair. Shoes should be brushed or polished checked to see if the heels are in good shape and not overrun.

Good grooming begins with cleanliness. Therefore, the bath is the first order, to be followed by the use of a deodorant. Then, for the girl, a tastefully applied make-up job. For the boys, a neat, clean shave.

A final inspection in a full-length mirror should reveal the general well-groomed appearance so vital to a job interview. "For," as Mrs. Miller points out, "first impressions are often lasting."

What Mel Broughton Says About Important Issues

On Improving Roads:

"We should continue as rapidly as possible to upgrade existing routes from east to west and north to south until all primary roads are four laned. We also must have more and better secondary roads throughout our state."

On Education:

"Our teachers and other educational personnel deserve better pay and our children deserve the kind of teachers that better pay will attract and keep in North Carolina."

On Fiscal Matters:

"We must seek always to make sure that North Carolina receives a dollar's worth of value for every dollar we pay out. As Governor, I would continue the sound principles of fiscal responsibility and fiscal integrity that have guided our state for many years."

On Industrialization:

"As Governor, I would seek to implement an official policy of attracting the highest paying industries to our State."

On Liquor By The Drink:

"The stresses, strains and temptations that already confront our youth today is one reason I am opposed to a system of liquor by the drink which might lead to a system of open bars in our state."

On Medical Care:

"I believe medical centers in the east and in the west in coordination with regional universities, existing hospitals and clinics could do much to cure the ills resulting from weak medical service in those regions."

On Law and Order:

"As Governor, I would use every resource to put down riots and apprehend the criminals and hoodlums who start and participate in them. I also would seek to get at the root from which the cancer springs."

On Agriculture:

"The economic status of the farmer in North Carolina must be improved. As Governor, I would form a task force of our best scientists, agricultural specialists and business leaders to seek answers to our farm problems."
