

WASHINGTON REPORT

Farmers Earning 2/3rds Of Gross 1968 Income, Should File Estimate Form

Congressman James T. Broyhill, sworn in today as the Representative from North Carolina's new 10th Congressional District, urged passage of legislation to provide for protection of the American textile industry in its fight against increasing imports in our domestic market.

The North Carolina Congressman introduced legislation which he explained was similar to the proposal sponsored by more than 200 members of Congress last year which would provide for an orderly trade policy for imported textiles.

In offering the bill in the House of Representatives, Congressman Broyhill called attention to the pledge made by President-elect Richard M. Nixon to "restore reason into our textile trade picture." His purpose in offering the legislation, he indicated, was "to support Mr. Nixon in his efforts to obtain international arrangements providing reasonable restraints on textile imports into the United States." The second purpose, he said, is "to emphasize to our major trading partners abroad that this Congress retains its interest in seeing that the growing textile problem is solved fairly."

In his discussion of the issue, Broyhill indicated that the problem is reaching serious proportions. "For the first ten months of 1968," he pointed out, "total textile imports reached almost 2.8 billion square yards. This rate, carried through the 12-month period, would exceed the previous record volume for any year by 5 million square yards or a huge 18%. Our textile trade deficit in 1968 will be more than $800 million."

Broyhill was critical of the trade policies followed by the Johnson Administration in their failure to deal with the textile import problem. "It is time," he said, "that we recognize that our trade policies are both unrealistic and unresponsive to the needs of our economy. It is inconceivable that we slavishly accept an unsound trade policy that undermines job opportunities for many thousands of people now employed and at the same time look for ways to provide jobs for people now unemployed."

Concluding his remarks, Broyhill indicated that "the 2.5 million employees of this great industry deserve to know if their future is on the trading block. There is surely only one satisfactory answer. This demands action without further delay."

GREENSBORO, N. C. — Farmers who earned at least two-thirds of their 1968 gross income from farming operations should file their declaration of estimated Federal income tax, including self-employment, for 1968 with the Southeast Service Center, 4800 Buford Highway, Chamblee, Georgia 30006, on or before Wednesday, January 15, 1968. Form 1040-ES should be used for this purpose.

However, J. E. Wall, District Director of Internal Revenue for North Carolina, said that farmers do not have to file an estimate if they file their 1968 Federal income tax return and pay all the tax due by February 17, N. C. 27401, or from your county farm agent.

"Farmer's Tax Guide," (Publication 225), which furnishes information on this subject, may be obtained by dropping a postcard to your District Director, estimate, on the same dates prescribed for farmers.

A man called me several days ago and wanted to know the differences between: a live oak (Quercus virginiana), a laurel oak (Quercus laurifolia), a Darlington oak (Quercus laurifolia Darlington), and a willow oak (Quercus phellos).

This was a rather large order for a quickie answer so I suggested that I do a little reviewing and call him back. Thinking that you might also be interested I am passing the information along to my readers; primarily in the lower Piedmont and Coastal Plain.

The live oak — This species is considered to be one of the aristocrats of the oak family. It attains tremendous size, is long-lived and drather slow in growth habit. It branches low into massive and widespread limbs and forms a broad, dense, rather round-topped crown of dark, glossy, evergreen leaves. It resists storm damage and is comparatively free of insect and disease troubles. Needs plenty of room.

The laurel oak — Fairly large in size, good form and semi-evergreen foliage. In many respects it is similar to the willow oak but is not as long-lived and is more subject to storm damage than either the live oak or the willow.

The Darlington oak — The Darlington is a variety of the laurel oak but is smaller and shorter lived than the laurel. Nursery stock of this variety is grown by some of our eastern Carolina nurserymen and its use in landscape planning seems to be on the increase in our Coastal Plain and also in South Carolina. Give it room.

The willow oak — This is a favorite. It is large, long lived, and a fast-growing deciduous tree. Slender branched with light green willow-like leaves give the tree a graceful appearance.

It is, perhaps, one of the most popular oaks for landscape use in the lower Piedmont and Coastal Plain. It needs plenty of room, 60 feet or more. For this reason it is not suitable for park strips or for planting between the sidewalk and the street curb.

MASONIC NATIONAL MEMORIAL
The George Washington Masonic National Memorial outside Washington, D. C., is the result of a movement started in 1910 by the Masonic fraternity to provide proper housing for the Masonic relics. Ground for the structure was broken in 1922 and in May 1932 the building was dedicated in Alexandria, Virginia.

Cold months see a rise in the number of cases of strep throat, states the North Carolina Heart Association. Strep throat may lead to rheumatic fever. Don't take a chance, see your doctor.
