Veterans Are Now Entitled To Educational Assistance

Veterans separated from service after January 31, 1955, were reminded today by the Veterans Administration that they are now entitled to one and one-half months of educational assistance — up to a maximum of 36 months — for each month of military service.

W. R. Phillips, manager of the North Carolina VA Regional Office, said a law which went into effect December 1 liberalized the previous Post-Korean GI Bill limit of one month of educational assistance for each month of service for veterans with at least 181 days of service, including some after January 31, 1955.

Phillips said another provision of the law which went into effect December 1 grants veterans with at least 18 months of continuous service after January 31, 1955, who have satisfied their military obligation, the maximum of 36 months of educational assistance entitlement.

Thus, for example, a veteran who may have entered service before the official end of the Korean Conflict (January 31, 1955), but had only 18 months of Post-Korean service, will still be able to get four academic years of VA educational assistance.

Unchanged by this new law is the amount of educational assistance allowance which a veteran may receive. Currently, a single veteran taking full-time institutional training is paid $130 a month by the VA. The amount of additional allowance he may receive depends on the number of his dependents.

Phillips pointed out Post-Korean veterans have eight years from the date of their separation from service to complete training under the third generation GI Bill.

Some Post-Korean veterans have earned entitlement to educational assistance under more than one VA program — the Korean Conflict GI Bill as well as the current measure, for example. Previously they were limited to aggregate benefits of 36 months.

Now, however, under the new law which went into effect December 1 they will be entitled to aggregate benefits of no more than 48 months.

The VA especially urged Post-Korean veterans who did not return to school because they could complete only a couple of years of college under the old formula — one month entitlement for each one month service — to contact their nearest VA Office.

Pat Taylor, Attorney General Robert Morgan, Congressman Nick Galifianakis, State Party Chairman James V. Johnson, Guilford Co. Sen. C. Dept. of C & D, Roy Sowers, and George Bristol from the Democratic National Committee in Washington.

Social Security Questions & Answers

Close to 800,000 elderly people will be getting letters this month reminding them that they have only until April 1 to sign up for the voluntary doctor bill insurance under Medicare.

In the letter, Robert M. Ball, Commissioner of Social Security, points out that for many of those who missed out on previous opportunities to sign up, the period from now to the end of March will be the last chance to get the protection. This includes persons who were born October 1, 1901 or earlier, and those who were enrolled in the program earlier, but dropped out January 1, 1967, or before.

With the doctor bill insurance part of Medicare, elderly people can supplement their basic hospital insurance protection with protection that helps pay doctors' and surgeons' bills and a wide variety of other medical expenses. In 1967, Commissioner Ball points out, it helped pay some 26 million medical bills and in 1968, another 33 million bills, mainly for physicians' services. Almost 19 million of the elderly are signed up for the protection, but about another million do not yet have the protection. The Social Security Administration is able to send the Commissioner's letter to 800,000 of them — those who have been issued Medicare cards showing that they are covered only by the basic hospital insurance part of Medicare.

There are perhaps another 200,000 or so for whom the Social Security Administration does not have current addresses, because they have not yet applied for the hospital insurance under Medicare.

Since the Social Security Administration has no way to get directly in touch with these older people, Ball appealed to sons and daughters and friends to call the open enrollment period to their attention, and suggest that they get in touch with the nearest social security office. The medical insurance part of Medicare is financed half from the monthly premiums paid by the older persons enrolled and half out of general Federal revenues. So the protection is worth twice the amount of the premium the older person pays. The basic premium rate is $4 a month, but older people who are late in signing up pay a premium that is 10 percent higher for each full year that they could have been enrolled, but were not.

With this letter, Commissioner Ball encloses a leaflet explaining the medical insurance benefits and an enrollment card to be sent back showing whether or not the person wants the protection.

He notes that if there are any questions about Medicare, the people at the nearest social security office will be pleased to help.
