DISTAFF DEEDS

(News items this week from Edgewood, Rowan, Anson and Rockingham counties.)

PARENTS PROFIT TOO

Parents can gain valuable knowledge from children who are 4-H members, believes Mrs. Raymond Farmer, Rocky Mount, Rt. 4.

When her two daughters, Nancy and Jackie, enrolled in the 4-H horticulture project, Mrs. Farmer became interested in planted some flowers and vegetables of her own.

The homemaker's interest and skill grew. She now has two greenhouses and sells petunias, geraniums, pansies, marigolds and some vegetables.

"I've always been interested in watching plants grow, but I would never have had the courage to start my own nursery if it hadn't been for Nancy's and Jackie's advice," Mrs. Farmer told Claudia Tutterow, assistant home economics Extension agent, Edgewood County.

"Mrs. Farmer plans to use the money she makes in her business to help finance her daughters' college educations," the agent adds.

FIFTEEN PAIRS OF PANTS

Fifteen pairs of little boy's pants were made by two Rowan County homemakers and donated to the Social Services Department for distribution to children in foster homes.

The fabric was salvaged from trousers an adult male could no longer wear.

In addition to their sewing skills, the homemakers furnished elastic and zippers, Edith Hinchshaw, home economics Extension agent, says.

The transistor effect was discovered by three Bell Labs scientists who later shared a Nobel prize in physics for their work.

An underground coaxial cable system that can carry 32,400 simultaneous calls is now in operation from Miami to New York.

The Bell System played a predominant role in the research and development that led to the world's first commercial satellite communications service.
