STILL MAKING SOAP

The art of making soap at home is still being practiced in Alamance County by members of the Pleasant Grove Extension Homemakers Club.

The project began when a club member had some rancid lard she no longer wanted to use in cooking. Mrs. Inez Newlin, another club member, knew of a need for soap to be sent overseas. "I've been told people scramble for just a little scrap of soap," Mrs. Newlin observed.

Club members save their extra bacon grease and purchase other needed ingredients; Mrs. Newlin makes the soap to be sent to the American Friends Service Committee in High Point.

From there, the Alamance County-made soap goes to those countries where it is needed most.

Safety Group Taps Officers

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Michael J. Potoczny, Director of Safety, Hall's Motor Express, Harrisburg, Pa., was elected National Chairman of the American Trucking Association's Council of Safety Supervisors, at the council's recent national meeting in Dallas, Texas.

Also elected to national office during the meeting, June 15-18, of the council were: Vice Chairman, Mrs. Rachel Kinlaw, home economics Extension agent.

MAKE 850 GARMENTS
Children living in foster homes in Rowan County, may soon be wearing new garments, made by members of the county's Extension Homemakers Clubs.

According to Edith Hinshaw, home economics Extension agent, "homemakers made 850 garments from fabrics donated by two local mills and several stores."

Garments were distributed by staff members of the Social Service Department. The women also donated $221.14 to the shoe fund.

CLOSET CLEAN-UP
Cleaning out closets in Vance County this spring netted over 1,000 usable garments. They were donated to the Salvation Army for distribution to needy individuals.

Extension Homemaker Club members are now making plans for a fall project, that includes visits to local homes to make needed clothing repairs. Mrs. Phyllis C. Shuback, home economics Extension agent, notes.

AT-HOME BUSINESS
Attending workshop on chair-caning may be big dividends for a Pasquotank County homemaker.

The woman enjoyed caning and was interested in something entertaining to do at home. At the same time, she realized that many persons in the Elizabeth City area had chairs they wanted caned.

The lady's main contact was an operator of woodworking shop. The gentleman offered to let the homemaker use as much of his business in chair caning as she wished to do.

The homemaker is now getting prepared for an "at-home" business by learning as much as she can about chair caning. Mrs. Elsie Edwards, home economics Extension agent, points out.

the motor carrier safety supervisors were: Dwight E. Ray, Vice President of Safety and Loss Prevention, Pilot Freight Carriers, Winston-Salem, N. C.; First Vice Chairman, and Robert B. Rivard, Director of Safety, Briggs Transportation, St. Paul, Minn.; Second Vice Chairman.

The ATA Council of Safety Supervisors is a national group of trucking industry personnel dedicated to making the nation's highways safer, and to promote better driving habits and among the truck drivers of the nation.

IRS Answers Taxpayers' Questions

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—I don't think the agent who examined my return was right in disallowing a lot of my deductions. Is there anyone else at IRS I can talk to about this?

A—You may request a district conference to discuss the disputed deductions. The way to do this is described on the notice you received explaining the proposed adjustments in your tax.

The conference provides you with an independent review of the items in question since the person representing IRS at the conference is independent of the office that examined your return.

Q—My boss stopped taking social security tax from my pay. Why?

A—Employers are required to withhold social security taxes on the first $7,800 in wages paid during the calendar year to each employee. In your case, that requirement has evidently been met.

Q—My son is putting aside his earnings from a summer job to pay for college. Do I count those earnings when I figure his total support?

A—The earnings are included for support purposes in the year they are spent for that purpose. If he spends the money this year then they have to be taken into account in computing total support when you file your 1970 return.

To meet the support test, you must provide over one-half the cost of providing your son's food, shelter, clothing, medical and dental care. Educational expenses are also included.

Q—I'm selling my house and moving into a retirement community. Will I have to pay tax on the profit I made?

A—Any gain on the sale of property is usually taxable. However, you can postpone the tax on the sale of a personal residence if another is brought within a year before or after the sale at a price at least equal to the "adjusted sales price" of the old house.

If you are 65 before the date of the sale, you may avoid paying tax on the profits from a home sale altogether. To do this, the house must have been owned and used as your principal residence for five of the past eight years and the "adjusted sales price" be $20,000 or less. When the "adjusted sales price" is over $20,000 only a portion of the profit will be taxable.

Q—Is there any tax difference between alimony and child support payments?

A—Yes, alimony payments are taxable to the person who receives them and deductible by those who pay them. Child payments are neither taxable nor deductible, but should be counted in total support for determining who is entitled to claim the child as a dependent.

Weekly Health Tip

By WILSON GRIFFIN

The common cold is still with us. The succession of new drugs advertised to give relief from the symptoms, but not to cure or shorten the cold's duration. Many cold sufferers insist that their doctor give them an antibiotic to hasten recovery. This seems unwise. Tests have confirmed the ineffectiveness of antibiotics and sulfa compounds on the frequency, duration or severity of colds — and the casual use of these potent drugs can cause complications of their own. Doctors generally agree that only if a bacterial infection occurs should an appropriate antibiotic be taken.

After you see your doctor, bring your prescription to
