Marihuana Tax Is High

Greensboro—Possession of marihuana is not only cause for heavy fines and long prison terms, it also brings out the IRS tax collector to see that Uncle Sam is remunerated for the amount of excise tax due under the Marihuana Tax Act of 1937. Tax on marihuana is, perhaps, the highest levy in existence. For one possession of each ounce or fraction thereof, the Congress has imposed an excise levy of $100. Even the smallest butt of one "joint" means the possessor must pay Uncle Sam $100 tax in addition to whatever punishment and fine the judge gives. Thus, at $1600.00 a pound in tax, it's mighty costly to be caught with the stuff.

William R. Morris, Chief of Intelligence with North Carolina's IRS, says that his office has arranged to receive reports from local police chiefs throughout the state as well as from intelligence officers from the several Army, Marine and Air Force stations located in North Carolina concerning arrests and convictions of those caught with marihuana.

Evans Firms Has Changes

Sheldon I. Kaplan, Vice Chair-

This information is then relayed to Mr. Ben R. McKain, Chief of the IRS Collection Division. A tax bill, computed at the rate of $100 per ounce (or fraction thereof), is then sent to the individual.

Mr. McKain says that the collection of marihuana tax is stringently enforced. If the possessor is a person without funds or job, the tax bill will remain dormant but collectible for as long as six years, during which time close, periodic checks are made as to a change in ability to pay. If judgment is secured in a federal court of law, the six year limitation for collection is removed and there is no limit in the length of time collection of the tax can be enforced.

Mr. McKain says that the commanding officers of all military posts in the state cooperate with IRS in collecting the tax from service personnel by assisting in serving levies against the offender's paychecks.
