Weekly Health Tip

By WILSON GRIFFIN
In San Francisco and in West Hartford, Conn. teenagers are giving aid and comfort to the aging with "Adopt a Grandparent" programs. During the past year, 183 students in seven Catholic high schools spent hours visiting and "doing little things" for older people living in nursing homes or unable to leave their own homes. This included reading, writing letters, fetching library books, playing games, talking - or just listening - to older folks. Such a program can only contribute greatly to the mental health of both the oldest and the teenagers.
