WEEKLY HEALTH TIP
By WILSON GRIFFIN
Unconscious because of injury or illness is usually a benevolent act of nature. Unfortunately, bystanders sometimes shake the victim, shout at him, throw water on him, administer smelling salts, or pour liquids into his mouth to arouse him. The unconscious person needs rest and quiet. If reathing has stopped, then artificial respiration should naturally be performed. Avoid moving the person if feasible. Summon medical help — at least get telephone advice before proceeding further with aid.
After you see your doctor bring your prescription to
