Conservation Practices Applauded

Preliminary figures now available show that 71,303 farms in North Carolina participated in agricultural conservation and pollution-abatement cost-sharing practices last year, according to H. O. Carter, State Executive Director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"Emphasis in North Carolina, as well as nationally, was on enduring practices that improved environmental conditions and reduced farm-related pollution of air or water," Mr. Carter said.

Nationally, 828,962 farms participated. Total acres, which includes those either treated or directly serviced, were 41.5 million acres across the Nation. Altogether, 2,222,436 farmers participated in the program at least once during the 1966-70 five-year period.

Mr. Carter said that 92 percent of the $181.6 million provided for cost-sharing in 1970 was spent on enduring practices compared with 87 percent in 1969.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), which administers the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP), through its farmer committee system, continues to increase the emphasis on long-term conservation and environmental improvement practices.

Mr. Carter said that greater emphasis is being placed on REAP practices that:

1. Provide clean air, clean water, more open space, and more and better wildlife habitat;
  2. Assure effective conservation accomplishments; and
  3. Yield conservation and environmental improvement activities that have wide public benefits.
- "Pollution abatement is also being emphasized under our present REAP practices," Mr. Carter said. "New authority for cost-sharing on practices that would greatly reduce farm-caused water or air pollution was granted in the 1970 program year, and this is continuing to be emphasized in 1971."

At the end of 1970 — the first year under this new authority — there were pollution abatement practices in 47 states, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. These included: animal waste lagoons; other animal waste management practices; sediment retention or sediment source stabilization; or sediment or chemical runoff control; woodland, crop or orchard residue disposal without burning; solid waste disposal pits on a pilot basis; and similar pollution abatement practices.

Teachers Launch Appraisal Team To Meet Friday

In order to make Math, English, Social Studies, and science more relevant, and thus more palatable, to everyday living, eight of the Central teachers have developed a project using a favorite high school course, Driver Education, as their base.

When students are in social studies they will delve into the history of transportation, cars, and driving. When in math, they will compute speeds, distances to stop, repair bills, etc. When in science, they will study engines and the mechanics of propulsion, as well as the disastrous effects of driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs, and when in English, they will become acquainted with specific vocabulary pertaining to transportation.

The vocational teachers and the teachers for the educable mentally retarded classes are also joining in the project. The home economics class is stressing upkeep of the auto and first aid. The shop will cover care of tires, engine, washing and waxing for longer life of the auto.

Such a program, hopefully, will generate more interest in what formerly were considered "dry" subjects.

Ambassador Cards

A KIND THOUGHT GOES A LONG WAY

A cheerful wish to a friend in the hospital, congratulations to the proud new parents, or a simple "hello" to a friend you've neglected. It doesn't take long, and it's really inexpensive, but the thought that goes with it goes a long way in brightening someone's day. That's why we feature Ambassador Cards...Your personal envoy of good taste."

A yard or so of material—and almost 200 years of dreams and determination—make an American Flag.

We honor that flag when we value the heritage it represents.

We defend it when we strengthen our freedoms by using them.

All this is part of what our young people must learn if they are to become responsible citizens.

Many educators count on the Treasury's School Savings Program to help illustrate these ideas. They know that buying U. S. Savings Stamps regularly gives each youngster an active part in his country's affairs, a part he can understand and from which he can come to appreciate how his country and his freedom depend on what he does as a citizen.

Let the School Savings Program help your students help America and themselves.

When they buy their first Savings Stamps this year they'll receive a wallet card showing Old Glory. When they trade in their stamps for a Series E Bond, a special Old Glory certificate will be awarded to them.

Now it's official.

Now one of the safest investments in the world brings you new and higher returns.

Now your U.S. Savings Bonds pay the highest interest in history: a full 5 per cent when held to maturity of 5 years and 10 months. (4% the first year; 5.20% thereafter to maturity.) Previously, these Bonds earned you only 4 1/4% if you held them for seven years.

The new interest began June 1, 1969. So all of the Bonds you own, no matter when you bought them, have been collecting higher interest since that time.

Those Bonds are still replaced if lost, stolen or burned.

You can still buy them through Payroll Savings or the Bond-a-Month plan.

Regardless of your other investments, can you think of any easier, better, or safer way to build a nest egg for yourself?

It's nice to know that you are doing a little something for Uncle Sam, too. The $52 billion in U.S. Savings Bonds now outstanding in the hands of millions of Americans go a long way toward keeping your country financially strong.

There never was a better time to take stock in America.

There's a man at the place where you work who can start you on the Payroll Savings Plan right now.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.

With higher paying U.S. Savings Bonds.
