Weekly Health Tip

Females generally showed the poorer dietary habits in a research by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. Until age 9 girls showed good food habits which provided the needed nutrients in reasonable quantities except for iron. From age 9, females tended to avoid good sources of iron and calcium, the primary source being milk. Other nutrients found in milk, namely vitamin A and riboflavin, were also underconsumed. Women in the 34-56 age group consumed the least amounts of milk and milk products. Apparently after age 9 the trend is away from milk and fruit juice toward soda pop and coffee, and a loss of important nutrients.
