

Control Pests In Soil For Good Garden

The gardens thousands of Tar Heels are now planting or planning for will be the buffet for a host of hungry, damaging soil-borne pests during the spring and summer. Controlling these invisible feeders can be one of the gardener's most important jobs. Nematodes and other soil-borne pests can be largely controlled by good soil management and proper use of chemical soil treatments, such as a nematocide.

Here are some suggestions by North Carolina State University plant pathologists Charles W.

Averre and J. C. Wels:

- (1) Rotate the garden site with small grains or grasses.
- (2) In the fall of the year or earlier, remove the crop along with the roots and plow.
- (3) Seed the site with small grain.
- (4) In the early spring plow it several times.
- (5) Apply the nematocide after the soil temperature at 4 inches depth is over 55 degrees and the soil moisture is adequate for seed germination.

Nemagon or Fumazone (DBCP) can be used for snapbeans, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, cantaloupes, carrots, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, egg plant, endive, honeydew melons, lettuce, muskmelons, okra, parsnips, summer squash, tomatoes, turnips and watermelons. This product is available as a granular material and liquid concentrate and is packaged in small quantities suitable for home-owners. No waiting period is required after treating the soil before planting seed. Use the amount of material specified on the label.

DD or Vidden-D is more difficult to use but is extremely effective. Two to three weeks waiting period is needed after application before planting.

Make furrows 12 inches apart and 6 to 8 inches deep. Dribble the fumigant in the bottom of the furrow at the rate of one pint per 150 to 175 linear feet. A jar with a tight lid with two ten-penny nail holes punched in opposite sides of the cap makes a suitable applicator. Cover the furrows with soil and ack.

For tomatoes only, the soil can be treated with Dasanit 15G. This granular material is sprinkled on the soil before planting at the rate of 2.4 to 4.9 ounces per 100 square feet and tilled in 4 to 6 inches deep. It may also be used in-the-row at the rate of 1.5 to 3.0 pounds per 1,000 feet of row. No waiting period.

For sweet potatoes only, the soil can be treated with Mocap 10G. It is also sprinkled on the soil at the rate of 2.5 to 3.3 lbs. per 1,000 feet of r-w, and tilled in the soil 4 to 6 inches deep. No waiting period is required.

The gardener should be cautioned to follow all directions on the label and to discard used containers in a safe manner, and store all pesticides out of reach of children.

Poll Shows Sowers First

RALEIGH. — Roy Sowers has become the front-runner in the Democratic party's race for the lieutenant governor's nomination, and is predicted to lead the ballot May 6.

This is the conclusion of a North Carolina professional polling organization, W. H. Long Marketing Inc., of Greensboro.

Results of the Long poll were released today to the various candidates included in the poll.

According to the poll, Sowers has the backing of 20.7 per cent of North Carolina's registered Democrats who plan to vote in their party's primary election on May 6.

James Hunt of Wilson, who at one time was considered the leading contender and who has been campaigning for the job for more than a year, seems to have faltered in the waning days of the primary campaign. Hunt was accorded 19.7 per cent with Margaret Harper of Southport close on his heels with 19.3 per cent. Sowers did not begin to campaign for the office until December.

However, the Long poll shows that 23.8 per cent of those questioned did not respond or indicated they were undecided. Long says the undecided voters will make the difference, predicting that Sowers would get most of those and lead in the May 6 primary balloting.

Long also predicted that the Democratic party's nominee for lieutenant governor will be a "shoo-in" in November's general election.

Long conducted his poll from April 1 through April 22 in 67 Tar Heel counties, polling more than 1,600 adults eligible to vote in 1,000 North Carolina households.

RE-ELECT

FRITZ MOREHEAD, JR.

FOR

COUNTY COMMISSIONER

I will not try to run on the past records of the board because I am not proud of them. I will run the same way this year that I have many times in the past three and one-half years. By myself.

I voted against the tremendous tax value increase for many reasons. The two main reasons are (1) the amount was far too high and (2) I do not feel the board of commissioners will vote to cut the tax rate low enough to offset most of the increase. This cut-back could and should have been done at the time of re-evaluation. I will continue to work for the lowest tax value and rate. I feel the tax rate can be below a dollar per 100 dollar value.

I voted against the additional 1c sales tax that was added on by the board of commissioners. I feel that if additional taxes are needed the fairest way is through the sales tax. In my vote against the tax I had to consider that the additional sales tax was voted against by over a seven to one majority by the entire county. The people of this county are the ones who pay the bills and I feel they should have been considered.

If a qualified county manager is found, and I do mean qualified, I will vote for him. I now feel that a person who knows the laws for county government, knows county finances up one side and down both of them, has the ability and will control the various departments in the county as needed I will vote to pay him for services rendered to the county. I do not feel that a person who applies for the job for the title only, a person who makes his day sitting in the office just to grin and shake hands with the various county officials and department heads and ride around in the county manager's car will be worth his salt.

I felt at the last election that a financial statement should be published in the paper at least quarterly. I tried at least twelve times to get this approved on a regular basis by the board. Many times my motion did not get a second and only one time was it published. I will continue to work for this statement to let you know at least quarterly what is needed and where your money is being spent.

If re-elected to the board of commissioners, I will continue to act as a representative of every citizen of Cleveland County. I will not be controlled by any individual or special group. I will continue to carry out your wishes for the good of our entire county.
