Named To Bethware Post

Elizabeth Elementary School in Shelby. The family resides in Shelby.

The young personable educator says his first real love is "teaching" and his second love is directing church music, which he finds a rewarding experience at Lily Memorial Baptist Church in Shelby. He recently led a 20-member youth group on a 12-day religious music "experience" to Haiti and "really learned to rough it", he said. The young people performed in nine areas a religious musical program in the countries of Jamaica, Haiti, and Dominican Republic. In addition to serving as church youth director, he also is church organist, Sunday School and Training Union teacher, and deacon.

Playing tennis, baseball, guitar and swimming and fishing with his young son are his hobbies, he says.

Mr. Nanney advocates "team teaching" and the "basics of education" and plans workshops for teachers using some of the guidelines he initiated in guidance and counseling at Central and KMJH, emphasizing individual and group counseling, lots of work with parents, and individual and group testing, also working with teachers in instructional program and in development of curriculum materials, work sheets and activity sheets.

Anxious to get involved in the community affairs, Mr. Nanney led a P-TA meeting on his first day of his new job last Thursday.

Supt. Donald Jones commended Principal Evans for a "job well done" and welcomed Mr. Nanney. He noted that renovation at Bethware School is complete with 11 new classrooms, a new office, media center, cafeteria, health room, and two "reading pits." The old economics building and canning shops have been removed and the grounds completely graded and landscaped to increase the play area. There will be a new bus loading area and covered walkways are planned.

City To Receive $212,500

The City of Kings Mountain has approved for a $212,500 state grant for water supply improvement.

KM is one of 34 local governments approved for funding under the Clean Water Bond Act of 1971.

Broyhill To Speak At Rotary

Rep. James Broyhill is guest speaker at today's Kings Mountain Rotary Club luncheon at the country club.

The 10th Congressional District representative is seeking his eighth term in Washington in the Nov. 2 general election.

Carl DeVane, program chairman for Rotary, arranged Rep. Broyhill's visit at noon.

A Family Affair

ties, Dr. Hunt said "what we hear the most is about the general loss of confidence in government and present leadership. People are not asking for anything in particular except that they truly be represented in Washington. The people are feeling left out of the scheme of things and it bothers them a great deal."

Hunt said the Harris Poll recently indicated that two out of three Americans feel they have lost their voice in Washington. People, by and large, feel the system is alright and want to make it work.

"I consider myself a citizen-legislator, in that order," Hunt said. "I believe I can restore some of the lost confidence in our government among the people.

"Our district is made up of people from farming backgrounds, people who are engaged in farming now, plant workers, small businessmen and professional men," he said. "I have a unique background in that I came from a farming family, I am engaged in farming now. I lived in a plant village for 10 years in a company owned house. I do own and operate five small businesses and I am a trained professional man. I think this background does enable me to relate to the general population of the district."

Hunt said he has been reassured during this campaign there are many, many people "out there with good common sense, judgement and concern for others. Patriotic people. I think if our leaders would simply follow the instincts of the people that our nation would be better off.

"This is what I hope to be able to do," Dr. Hunt said. "To bring Washington closer to the people."

Forum Slated By Democrats

The two Democratic candidates for the Tenth Congressional seat will appear together on a voter-candidate forum program this Thursday in Cleveland County.

The forum, which is being sponsored by the Cleveland County Young Democrats, will be held at 7:30 p. m. in courtroom number two of the Law Enforcement Center in Shelby.

Cleveland County YDC President Nelson Conner noted that both Dr. Eugene Poston, former president of Gardner Webb college and Dr. Jack Hunt, a former state legislator will be present at the forum. The two candidates will address the meeting and will then field questions from the floor from those attending the session.

Poston and Hunt are facing each other in the Aug. 17 primary in an effort to gain the Democratic nomination for Congress and a chance to oppose incumbent Republican James T. Broyhill on the November ballot.

Conner noted that the Thursday night meeting will be open to the public and he encouraged residents in the Tenth district to take advantage of this opportunity to meet, hear and question the two candidates.

AT BEACHES

Among local residents visiting at the beaches have been Mr. and Mrs. Chris Trakas and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Nichols and sons, Mark and Eric, Mrs. Gary Hollis Sr. and son Gary Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Nicky Nichol.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Lester Farris and children and Dede Crawford.
