College Freshman Writes....

Skydiving: Unique Journey

By JODY PLONK
Special To Mirror-Herald
(Ed. Note — Jody Plonk is a freshman student at Newberry College and is daughter of Marguerite and William Lawrence Plonk). Her article appeared in the February 23 edition of "The Indian," Newberry College student newspaper.

One Sunday afternoon I had the extreme pleasure of being able to experience going up in a small plane used for skydiving and then watching several people as they jumped out of the plane. Although I knew relatively little, if anything, about skydiving, I found myself on a unique journey. As we climbed in distance, I became awed by the rich blueness of the sky and the vast horizon. When the time came for the skydivers to jump, I watched with total fascination as they jumped out of the plane. They were free with the birds for a moment until the parachute opened.

Later on I interviewed several Newberry College students who are involved with the campus skydiving club.

Pat Malo talked of a particular time he jumped: "The second time I jumped I was a little bit nervous, but as we came to our jump run in the late afternoon the sun was almost setting. The sunlight came out and just washed everything pure silver, and it was the first time I ever realized what skydiving was about. Skydiving is jumping to get to the ground, but really it is something to be free of the ground for a little while."

Joan Andrews, organizer of the campus club, said of her time: "Ecstasy — I am out here by myself. O My God! She feels skydiving is an indescribable feeling that you must experience yourself.

Joan broke her leg on her second jump from being too tense but she plans to jump again in the near future.

John Fisher refers to his first jump: "Nervous-uptight. It was like the first time you saw anything. A real wild feeling. My mind sitting there saying, 'Wow.'"

John broke his leg, too, for several reasons including tenseness. But, he, too, plans to jump again.

If anyone is interested in skydiving, contact Joan Andrews or Ronnie Wood in Greenwood, S. C.

In closing, Pat Malo's comments could best sum up skydiving: "Skydiving is not for everybody because you must put complete faith and trust in the jumpmaster, in yourself, and finally in the equipment, your training on the ground, and a level head in the air."
