Mauney Home In Albuquerque

Mauney Home Is Featured

The Albuquerque, New Mexico home of Dr. and Mrs. Herman Mauney was featured in a Fall edition of "Albuquerque Living." Dr. Mauney is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. Mauney of Kings Mountain.

"This House Says Welcome" was the appropriate title of the four page picture feature by Susan Craig.

It's the individual touches by Dr. Mauney and his wife, Emily, that make the Mauney's house a personal statement.

Herman's collection of five cut crystal is displayed in a floor-to-ceiling glass case in the dining room. The guest room was designed around twin, four-poster beds in which Emily's mother and aunt were born 93 years ago. In the den, also upstairs, is an upright Fischer piano that belonged to Emily's mother. The matching stool was found in Herman's father's attic. Both pieces are antiques and look ready for another 50 years. Emily decorated the dining room with furniture and paintings she inherited from her mother. The dining room is also home for many silver antiques. Herman designed and made the attractive blue window cornice. Guests dine at a table beneath a crystal chandelier. Underneath the table is a Chinese rug of brilliant blues and reds.

It seems natural that visitors would explore the house. Doorways practically beckon you forward. A tall archway, outlined in blue tile, leads to the master suite which includes a bedroom and sitting room.

The suite is decorated in a harmonious blend of blues and grays. Another doorway, shaped like a keyhole, takes you into the dressing room bath complete with sunken tub. Most people do a double take when they see the cabinets. The mirrors on the walls make the cabinets look as though they are floating in midair. Another doorway leads to the spa, which is floored in brick. The lower level looks inward to the plaza the way houses in Spain or Mexico look onto a central courtyard or patio. The design is reversed upstairs. The second level looks outward to the valley and mountains. Magnificent views of the city and the Sandias may be seen from the windows of the bedroom, den and study. Each of these rooms has its own balcony.

Their two story Tanoan home is perfect for entertaining. Guests seem to be drawn first to the solar atrium in the center of the house. The Mauneys call it a plaza because the room is reminiscent of a Spanish market with its brick floors and royal blue tiles. The glass walls reach upwards 18 feet to curved balconies and rust colored tile window boxes. The atrium also has a classical look to it with tile circles, round windows, and geometrically designed doorways. The plants and trees add to the relaxed feeling of the room. And, the soft splashing sound of the fountain is a great conversation starter.

Practically everything you need for a party is in the plaza, including an indoor barbecue. Emily calls it her second kitchen. The plaza is designed to attract sun, as well as partygoers. For total passive solar heating, the Mauneys can close off the room from the rest of the house.

The living room was designed to highlight favorite paintings of the couple brought from North Carolina. Emily's organ is framed in its own alcove. A massive china cabinet fits into another recess. Walls either protrude or recede to best show off the Mauney's fine collection of paintings. The focal point of the room is a large unique fireplace accented by dimmer lights hanging from the cathedral ceiling.

There is also a library, a workroom, a darkroom and all of the house and yards are designed for comfort and reflect the personality of the owners who say the welcome mat is always out.
