

Special Education Confab is Slated At Greensboro

GREENSBORO — The North Carolina Council for Exceptional Children and North Carolina Speech Therapy Association will meet in joint session Saturday, March 21, at the O'Henry Hotel in Greensboro. A timely and informal program has been planned by these two organizations.

SYMPOSIUM HELD

The interest to many people will be a symposium on "Transition from Divided Program to Full-Day Classes for Mentally Retarded." The main highlight of the one-day conference will be a luncheon sponsored by both organizations at which Dr. Donald A. Harrington, Specialist in Speech and Hearing Section of Exceptional Children and Youth, U. S. Office of Education, will deliver an address on "Professional Requirements in the Field of Speech and Hearing."

WHO MAY ATTEND

This conference is open to superintendents, supervisors and principals, as well as to members of the two associations.

KEY RESERVATIONS FOR DINNER

For reservations for the luncheon members of the Council for Exceptional Children should write the president—Mrs. Pearl Ramos, 11625 Cambridge Road, Charlotte 7, North Carolina.

Members of the Speech Therapy Association should write the president, Miss Ruth Rich, Candler, North Carolina, or the designated representative in charge of local arrangements, Mr. Dan Jackson, Director of Special Education, Greensboro City Schools, Greensboro.

Many Profits In Raising Family Under Influence Of Christianity

GREENVILLE, Ala. — If one would like to know what profits can be derived from raising a family under Christian influence he only has to talk with Mrs. E. B. Patton, wife of Prof. T. M. Patton, president of Lomax-Hannon College, located here.

Mrs. Patton, who serves as dietitian, teacher and counselor, for the school delights in telling this creditable story as how she raised a family of six and how all of them are now making contributions to the development of a broader life for those with whom they come in contact.

It was her good pleasure to have been twice married. Her first husband was a minister and she tells how they decided early in their marital journey that they would give their children back to God. Mrs. Amedea Stickney, a graduate of Alabama State, brought signal honor to the family and the state when she was chosen to represent Alabama in the celebration of Cuba's 100th anniversary of the coming of education to that country.

She is currently working in the Laboratory School of Alabama State, located in Calhoun. She is married to Alexander Stickney, who also has made a record in the field of education. Mrs. Stickney attended the Founders' Day ceremonies, held recently at Lomax-Hannon and addressed the meeting.

Alphonso McGee was the first Negro appointed to serve as a secretary to the American Legation in Liberia. He also is a graduate of Alabama State and has done graduate work at Miner Teachers College, Catholic University and Columbia University. He currently teaches Commercial Art at Spring Hill High School, Washington, D. C. His wife, Ruby, is a social worker in Washington, D. C.

Hortense McGee Bishop, lives in Meridan, Miss., and teaches English at Mississippi State College. She is a graduate of Atlanta University. Her husband, James, is a mortician in the Mississippi town.

Ulyses McGee is a graduate of Tuskegee for a number of years served as a dietitian. He is employed in the Railway Postal Service in Detroit, where he lives with his wife and three children.

Heloise McGee Weston is a member of the faculty of the city schools of Demopolis. She graduated from Alabama State and got her Master's degree from Atlanta University. The only child born to the best union, DeMeris Patton Napper is a product of Livingstone College and Howard University. She teaches at the Drew High School, Tuscaloosa, where she has charge of English.

"That's a good little boy," said the visitor, as Johnny picked up his mother's toy. "I suppose your mother has wrapped you something if you clean up the room."

"If I don't," he corrected her.

TO HER STUDENTS at Morgan State College, Mrs. Winder-Gilkes points out that Carnation is the safest form of milk for baby's bottle.

College child-development teacher tells why doctors RECOMMEND CARNATION FOR INFANT FEEDING

Professionally, Mrs. Winder-Gilkes is known as Dr. T. Vivian Winder. Her doctorate is in home economics. She teaches nutrition, marriage and family life, and child development at Morgan State College in Baltimore, Md. Dr. Winder is definite about Carnation's superior qualities for infant feeding as well as for cooking.

"Carnation is the most digestible and the most nourishing form of milk for infant formulas," Dr. Winder states. "It is used in more hospital formula rooms than all other brands combined."

"And this milk that is best for babies is best for cooking, too. That's not surprising when you realize Carnation is double-rich. "It is pure, whole milk, evaporated to remove more than half the water. Nothing else is taken out, nothing is added but Vitamin D. Every drop is simply twice as rich as ordinary milk. That's why Carnation looks like cream, pours like cream — and even whips!"

Dr. Winder says no other form of milk will do for "cream" recipes, like the hump-free cream sauce below. "This cream sauce requires only half the usual butter and flour because Carnation itself is so rich. I use it for creamed chicken, tuna, chipped beef and casseroles."

MRS. WINDER-GILKES is shown here with her husband, Evan Gilkes, M.D., a gynecologist and obstetrician in Baltimore. The Gilkes are shown in one of their rare interludes of leisure—Saturday at lunch.

"COFFEE isn't coffee without Carnation," Mrs. Winder-Gilkes declares. "There's nothing better." Carnation in the red and white can—the milk "from Contented Cows"—is the world's leading brand of evaporated milk.

Rotary Fellowship For First Term Prexy Of Frat At A Penna. College

EASTON, Pa.—Leonard Jeffries, Jr., Lafayette College senior from Newark, N. J., has been awarded a Rotary Foundation Fellowship for advanced study abroad during the 1959-60 academic year.

One of 135 students from 35 countries to receive the honor, Jeffries plans to study political science and international relations at the University of Lausanne in Switzerland. He will enter law school upon his return to his country.

A dean's list student at Lafayette, Jeffries was the first Negro ever elected president of a social fraternity on the campus. He was head of Pi Lambda Phi fraternity for a year's term which ended in February.

Jeffries was also chairman of a Religious Emphasis Week program at Lafayette last month, is an elder of the College Church, and last September won the David Fowler Atkins Jr. Prize for superior work in Lafayette's department of religion.

He is vice-president of Knights of the Round Table honorary society and has served as vice-president of the Debating Society.
