

'Bigger, Better Business Week' Observance During This Month

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Every year, during the month of April, the Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc., a national college Greek letter organization, celebrates Bigger and Better Business Week throughout its chapter domain. As a part of its program to stimulate business, the fraternity, through Dr. Robert J. Hill, of Baltimore, Md., its National Director of Bigger and Better Business, recently released the following objectives:

- (1) "To promote the inquiry, adoption and the application of higher business, professional, social and civic standards."
- (2) "To promote business and services as the basis of all worthwhile endeavors."
- (3) "To develop by precept, example and coordination, intelligent, aggressive, serviceable leadership and citizenship."
- (4) "To discover leadership and community retrain, coordinate and enact business responsibility."
- (5) "To further the means of promoting enduring friendships and giving primacy to the human and spiritual making of better men and finer communities."

All chapters of the fraternity are to sponsor some type of program to assist in the achievement of the above objectives during April, notwithstanding that they are also expected to follow through on these objectives during the calendar year.

2. Opening date of the Summer Music and Art School will be Wednesday, June 10. The school will close on Wednesday, July 22. One day over the 4th of July weekend will be observed as a holiday.

3. Courses in intermediate band for elementary and junior high school students will be offered. Students who are in grades four through nine, inclusive, this year, will be accepted in the instrumental music courses.

4. Art for elementary junior and senior high school students will be offered.

5. All students should report at 9:00 a. m. on Tuesday, June 9th for payment of tuition and for instructions.

Husband Beaten By Whites, Wife Drowns While Escaping

WILSONVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The body of a woman who ran for her life when several white men attacked her husband, lost her bid for freedom when she fell into a nearby pond. Her body was recovered Saturday. Drowning was ruled the cause of her death.

Lawrence Brasher, 45, husband of the dead woman, reported his wife missing after telling of a beating he received at the hands of six white men who came to his house and identified themselves as FBI agents.

Brasher said the men told him they were looking for liquor, then forced him into a car. He said the men tied him to a tree and beat him with sticks.

Terrified, his wife ran out of the house, Brasher said. Sheriff C. P. Walker said Mrs. Brasher's body was found where an abandoned road bed crosses a creek about a quarter-mile from the Brasher home. He speculated she may have been enroute to the home of an aunt who lived nearby.

Although the water was only about two feet deep, Sheriff Walker said the embankment is high and steep.

Walker said evidence found at the tree supported Brasher's story of the beating.

Outstanding Musician, Lecturer Holds Clinic

GREENSBORO — The chairman of the Music Education Department at Western Reserve University of Cleveland, Ohio, conducted a clinic on woodwind instruments at A and T College, Tuesday, March 31.

Arthur Saam Best, a music instructor at the Cleveland University first oboist with the famed Cleveland Philharmonic Orchestra and who is considered one of the top MUSICAL CLINIC AT A AND T woodwind clinicians in the country appeared here Tuesday. He lectured and gave demonstrations on the clinic sponsored for school band directors and their students in Greensboro and nearby communities.

Best, a graduate of Michigan State College has taught music and directed bands at Michigan State, Kalamazoo and Olivet Colleges and several high schools. He appeared here through the courtesy of the local Moore Music Company.

Walter F. Carlson, Jr., director of Bands at A and T and in charge of local arrangements for the clinic. Band directors and their students were invited from the area covered by the Central District of the North Carolina School Band Association.

The clinic was held in Crosby Hall and extended through early afternoon.

We know old men who remember the compliments that came to them as little boys.

BAND ECHOES

BY JOSEPH L. EDWARDS

On April 2nd, the Lucille Hunter School PTA held an open house program. The band played two selections. The glee club sang three selections: "Dona Nobis Pacem," a Latin round; "The Orchestra Song," by Gorman, and "Eternal Life," by Olive Dungan. Miss A. M. Jarnigan conducted the glee club and it was accompanied by Mrs. Ruby Banks. The main speaker was Mrs. Ruth Woodson.

The program in sight for next week will feature the Crosby-Garfield band. Mrs. Nora Lockhart is the principal of the school. Parents and friends are invited to come out for this PTA meeting as it will be an important one, as well as an entertaining one.

The Crosby-Garfield band has developed very nicely this year. Almost the entire group made the All-City Band which will perform on April 16th, at Ligon. The meeting is scheduled for April 14th. The entire music program of the school will be featured, the Rhythm Band, the String Group and the Glee Club. Miss A. M. Jarnigan will conduct the glee club; Miss Lucille Hassle will conduct the String Orchestra.

Blanks are being distributed among current band members for the summer school. Parents are urged to return the blanks as soon as possible so that an estimate of class size can be made. We need at least thirty students to open the class. Fourth graders will be accepted depending on their test scores and recommendation by their class room teacher.

The J. W. Ligon band concert on April 16th will feature the seniors. Most of them will play solos. Last week the band gave its annual spring concert. Eleanor Nunn, band president, played "Around the World in Eighty Days" on the flute; Isaiah Whitaker played "A Trumpeter's Lullaby" by Leroy Anderson; DeWitt Hunter played a saxophone solo, "In The Deep Deep Depths" by Ord; Herman Taylor, Jr. played a baritone saxophone solo, "Blue Tango." The accompanists were Nancy Irdell and Loydine Perry.

All of the seniors want to make the concert a success as it will be their last.

On April 7th the band will go to Rocky Mount to take part in the Northeastern Band Festival. It is entering class "A".

On April 8th the band of Mary Phillips School will be on the PTA program. There will be solos by members of the class as well as ensembles. As the youngest band class, it has developed rapidly and boasts eleven members. They are: Percussion — Oris Carrington, Roman Green, William Handy, Louis Alston, Charles Watkins and Michael Curtis. The latter two will play solos, "Long Long Ago" and "Beating Out The Dust", respectively; clarinets — Kay Frances Durham and Sunda Fleming; cornets — Floyd Baker, Edward Baxter and Winston McCullers. In addition, the parents are going to stage a Womanless Wedding. All parents and friends are invited to attend the meeting.

On April 9th the Oberlin School Band will perform for the April PTA meeting. The advanced class will play solos and ensemble selections.

Details concerning the summer program are listed below. If you have further questions, call TE-4-7449.

SUMMER MUSIC AND ART SCHOOL

For students who are interested in summer study of musical instruments and art, courses will be offered at J. W. Ligon Junior-Senior High School for a six-weeks period. The program will be under the general supervision of the principal. Pertinent information is as follows:

1. Registration for the Summer Music and Art School will be held Wednesday, April 20, through Friday, April 22. Students who are planning to attend should complete a form, attaching a registration fee of $5.00, and return the form to their classroom teacher or instrumental music teacher. If not large enough to justify of the registration for a course is being the course, the $5.00 deposit will be returned; otherwise, the deposit will be deducted from the tuition. Classes will be filled as registra-
