Mrs. Addie O. Williams Given Fayetteville Supervisory Post

FAYETTEVILLE—Mrs. Addie O. Williams, a long-time resident of Fayetteville and a former instructor at the Newbold Laboratory School and at summer sessions of the Fayetteville State Teachers College, has been appointed supervisor of the Fayetteville Elementary Schools for Negroes.

She will begin her duties with the beginning of the forthcoming fall session. In order to accept the position, she has resigned a similar position as Supervisor of Elementary Schools for Negroes in Vance County.

Mrs. Williams comes adequately prepared for the position both by training and experience. She holds the B.S. degree (1940) from the Fayetteville State Teachers College, the M.A. degree (1945) and more than a year of work toward the doctorate at Columbia University.

As to experience, she has taught at the Spaulding High School in Bladen County, the Newbold Laboratory School at Fayetteville, and has served as supervisor of the elementary for Negroes in Vance County.

At the college level, she has served as a summer school instructor at Morris College, Sumter, South Carolina; the Alcorn A. and M. College at Larman, Mississippi; the Fayetteville State Teachers College at Fayetteville; and at the Fort Valley State College at Fort Valley, Georgia. And for a period she served as Educational Consultant with the John C. Winston Company, with headquarters in Philadelphia.

As to affiliation with professional associations, Mrs. Williams is a member of the North Carolina Teachers Association, the American Teachers Association, the American Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, and a life member of the National Educational Association.

She lives with her husband, Daniel L. Williams, also a teacher, at 1608 Murchison Rd. in Fayetteville.

GETS FAYETTEVILLE SUPERVISORY POST — Shown here is Mrs. Addie O. Williams, of Fayetteville, thinking through the work as Supervisor of the Fayetteville Elementary Schools for Negroes, a post to which she recently was named. She comes to Fayetteville from a similar post in Vance County. Mrs. Williams is currently pursuing advanced studies at Columbia University.

Nixon Calls Civil Rights Issue Moral Rather Than Legal Matter

NEW YORK — Vice President feels that civil rights "is primarily a moral rather than a legal question," Nixon said Monday.

Last Rites At Fayetteville For Ex-Clerk Dock Williams

FAYETTEVILLE — The funeral of Dock Williams, long-time resident of Fayetteville, was held at the First Baptist Church on Franklin Street, Sunday, June 14, with the pastor, the Reverend Chancy R. Edwards, officiating. Mr. Williams, who had been a member of the church for many years, died at his home, 307 Moore Street, Tuesday, June 9, after an extended illness.

The obituary, given by Miss Emma Holmes, was followed by remarks on behalf of the G. Winston, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Jarret, Captain and Mrs. L. F. Turner, Dr. and Mrs. George Simkins, Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Street, Jr.

Mr. Louise G. Street, home economics instructor of Bennett, was directress of the wedding.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. John Marks of 914 Moody Street, entertained at a reception in their club on Burlington Road.

church by Deacon Cicero Fowler and those for the local Railway Express Agency for which he had worked for 36 years, by A. L. Smith, former Transfer Clerk. In the eulogy Pastor Edwards pointed to the fine record Mr. Williams had made in his home, in the church, on his job, and in the community as a whole.

The deacons served as active pall bearers and those in the honorary category included M. D. Daniels, Samuel Thaggard, William Kelllogg, Frank Williston, Dr. W. P. Devane, and L. W. Howell. The floral bearers were Rosa Anders, Katie Webb, Beatrice Scott, Clara McLeod, Lillie McNeil, and Eliza Mallett.

Mr. Williams was born in Fayetteville and lived there most of his life. He served his country in World War I, and in 1935 was married to Miss Alberta Hughes. They have one daughter, Dorothy.

Surviving him are a wife and a daughter, step-son, Allen Walker, a sister, Margaret Watson of Brooklyn, New York, and many nieces and nephews.

It is written on, unless it has the moral support of the majority of the people." Commenting on the school desegregation issue, Nixon said in the article: "The moderate approaches which have been put into effect in Nashville and Louisville are very constructive. They are reasonable and sensible and provide a possible formula which might spread all over the South in a way that would be workable and realistic." Bennett Grad Weds A & T Summa Cum Laude Student GREENSBORO — On Monday evening, the Annie Merner Pfeiffer Chapel of Bennett College, here, was the scene of the double-ring ceremony uniting Miss Ance Dione Faison, and Verable L. McCloud.

Miss Faison, daughter of the late Mrs. Nancy Simmons Faison of Dudley and J. D. Faison of Brooklyn, N. Y., was a General Home Economics major at Bennett College and received her B.S. degree on the morning of her wedding day.

McCloud, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie D. McCloud of Mt. Airy, was a History major at A&T College, received his B.S. degree and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force Reserve on the afternoon of their wedding day. In addition to several other awards received during the commencement exercise, McCloud graduated Summa Cum Laude. Prior to the marriage, nuptial music was rendered by Miss Diana Crosin of Charlotte, with Mr. Clarence Whitman at the organ. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend P. O. Alston, assistant superintendent of the Southern District of Congregational Churches.

The bride wore a gown of rayon crystalline and nylon organdy with heavy heirloom lace trimming the neckline, and front. The slight train fell in a cluster of pleats from the back. Her elbow length veil of illusion formed a three-tiered cascade from a crown, encircled with seed pearls and tear drops. She carried a white leather prayer book on which a white orchid and a cluster of lily of the valley were placed.

Miss Faison designed and made her own gown and supervised the making of her eight attendants' gowns during an independent study course in clothing her senior year at Bennett.

Miss Delores G. McCloud, sister of the groom, of Flint, Michigan, was maid of honor and wore a rose nylon organdy gown over taffeta.

The flower girl, Jean Simkins, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Simkins, Jr. of this city, wore a white nylon organdy gown which was sprinkled with tiny pink flowers.

The bridesmaids: Misses Inez Jones, Emma Martin, Wilhelma Gatewood, and Ruby Starks of North Carolina; Misses Nannie Poole, Baltimore, Maryland and LaRita Waters of Miami, Florida, wore light pink nylon organdy gowns over taffeta.

All of the bride's attendants carried bouquets of white magnolia blossoms which is the traditional flower of Bennett College. The bouquets were prepared by Miss Alstie Trammel of the Bennett College staff.

Ivor Carr of New York, N. Y., who graduated with McCloud, was best man. The ushers were Curtis Moody, William Chapman, Paul Reed, James Jones, David Murray and Mizell Hawkins all of A&T College.

The bride's brother, James H. Faison of Brooklyn, N. Y. gave her away. Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. William Marks, godparents of the bride, Atlantic City, N. J.; Mrs. J. H. Faison, sister-in-law of the bride, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hood, sister of the groom, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. James Brim, sister of the groom, Mt. Airy; Mrs. Zora Faison, aunt of the bride, New York, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Lippman Durham of Mt. Olive; Mrs. A. P. Pincusky and Mrs. M. A. Wohl of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Brevington and Mrs. Granger Carter of Dudley.

Other guests in the audience were: Dr. Willa B. Flayer, president of Bennett College, the Reverend John L. Bryan, College Chaplain; Dr. and Mrs. C.
