SPURGING AMID POVERTY

ROCKY MOUNT

It grieves those of us who are trying to advance the civil and political standing of colored people to see so needless spurning on the part of those among us who have been blessed with more than an average amount of this world's goods. It grieves us even more to see those who can hardly make it 90 days on our own—without a job or when sickness or misfortune overtakes us—without having to borrow from every source we can or be taken in by our relatives; those whose job security is unstable, make displays of clothes, cars, homes or parties far beyond our abilities to do so.

We read of a wealthy professional colored gentleman—in a Deep South state—who has for his family a reputed $100,000 luxury home, the furniture in which is said to be worth $25,000. This is a palace for anyone.

We do not envy this family their ultra-modern castle. But what worries us is that we don't recall seeing this man's name listed prominently among the names of those of his race who are fighting this battle for freedom so that more of his people can get better job opportunities, educational opportunities, too, can get better homes and ties and citizenship rights so that perhaps, at least, a $20,000 home.

Maybe this man has already taken up $500 NAACP Life Memberships for himself and each member of his family—including those grandchildren who enjoy swimming in his private indoor pool and playing in his beautiful floral gardens? If he hasn't done it he certainly should to help insure their future freedom on that estate.

What this column can't understand is WHY any person of color would want to invest so heavily in a private "show-place" in a highly segregated southern community where it is calculated to incur the wrath of prejudiced whites, and Negroes, too? Perhaps this wealthy man is a great benefactor of his race—a freedom fighter and real friend to man. We hope he is. We hope to read more of his good works.

But when we know that there is MUCH, VERY MUCH, poverty, ignorance and need for lifting the standards of his people in his state and nation, we cannot help but wonder how he and other similarly situated can be "at ease in Zion" while "Rachel weeps for her children" and will not be comforted because they are not? "Woe unto them who are at ease in Zion," says the Bible.

Continuing on the matter of spurning, we wish to point out that this week one of our more prominent fraternal groups (IBPO-EW ELKS) will be meeting in At-
