RESULTS OF AROMATIC TOBACCO — Walter Thornton, H. T. Jones, and L. C. Cooper, Negro County Agent, Aromatic Tobacco producers of Warren County appear mighty happy over the check received from marketing tobacco. Jones says it's less work in growing this tobacco than the flue cured, and the cost is far less than flue cured tobacco. This crop certainly has a place on the farm where labor is available. Jones says the tobacco should be transplanted in April as the harvesting will not interfere with harvesting of flue cured crop. Jones and Thornton plan to plant four (4) acres next year.

Warren Farmer Sells Cotton By The Hour

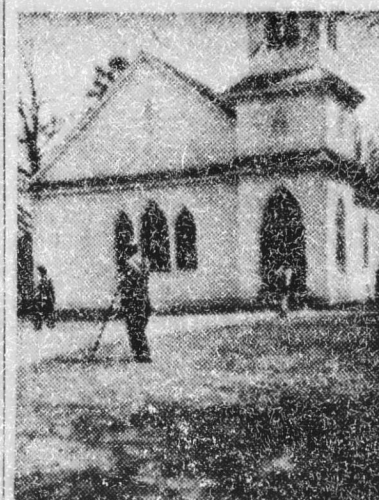

WARRENTON—Augustus Alston of Route 1, Warrenton, reports that he is now selling cotton by the hour instead of by the pound. In one hour his cotton profits him $12.23.

Alston says he had 1,285 pounds of seed cotton which valued at 12 1-2 cents per pound which amounted to $157.41. He decided to have the cotton ginned and baled. The cost of ginning came to $126.76. His baled cotton weighed 475 lbs. and sold for $165.40. He sold the seeds for $17.

By having his cotton ginned and baled, he grossed $133.40 less the cost of ginning ($12.76). Alston says he only had to wait about 45 minutes to get his cotton ginned, but for $12.23 extra, he could afford to wait all day and come back the next day.

Alston says he thinks he still lost money by not waiting for a week. Next time he plans to have his cotton sampled and sent to Raleigh for the Smith-Doxey Class Service in marketing cotton.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM — The Community Development Program in North Carolina has spread to the Capitol Area, involving several counties, with Raleigh as the headquarters serving farmers and farm families of Central Carolina. Here in Warren County, the Forke Chapel, Mayflower, Shocco, Ellington, and Vaughn Communities are participating in the Capitol Area Community Development. Forke Chapel Community lead the other communities in progress and placed 4th among the seven-county participation for a cash prize of $50.00.
