Institute On Problems Of Youths Held At Smith U.

CHARLOTTE—The first of two sessions of an institute on youth problems was held at Johnson C. Smith University Thursday night with expert panelists at the helm of the program.

Leading the discussion were Mrs. F. I. Chapman, professional psychologist, Lt. J. R. Hall, head of the Charlotte Police Department's Youth Bureau, and J. R. Law, professor of psychology at the University. This opening session dealt with the causes and different kinds of youth problems.

Lt. Hall, who has been with the Youth Department for the past 10 years, stated that there is no specific area in this city without a juvenile problem. He pointed out that one difficulty about the problem is the definition of "juvenile." In North Carolina, he said, after a child reaches the age of 16, he is treated as an adult in every respect.

In response to a question, Professor Law gave the opinion that one seldom finds a person at the age of 16 who has achieved emotional maturity. "Youths in this age group have not come to grips with the developmental tasks before him," Law stated.

Mrs. Chapman, also giving an opinion as a professional psychologist, mentioned that one of the causes of youth problems is that children today are not challenged to find out what they can BE-COME. The main challenge today, she stated, is to discover what they can do in a monetary sense.

Reddy Says:

"when winter comes - you use more electricity."

As days get shorter, lights burn longer.

Reddy knows that long, cold nights and sunless days can work him overtime because everyone has just one idea—keep warm and comfortable. And he likes to help you do exactly that.

But he also has a gentle reminder. Cold snaps call for more kilowatts than do summer months. The automatic furnace runs practically all the time. Your electric water heater must heat water that comes into the home at a much lower temperature. More hot meals and in-between snacks are prepared on your electric range and small appliances.

In fact you use more of just about everything electrical such as TV, lighting and electric space heaters. Naturally, the more Reddy works for you the more his services are reflected in your electric bill.

However—when the weather's roughest is when folks appreciate the comfort and convenience of electrical living. Take a peek around your home and then ask what else does so many things at such reasonable cost? It's still the biggest bargain in the family budget.
