Discrimination Charged-Durham Attorney Wants To Probe Bootleggers

CIVIL RIGHTS MARCHERS, ON WAY TO RALEIGH - Greenville: Civil rights protestors are shown just before city police arrested them Monday. The march was the start of a nine day march to Raleigh to protest police brutality. (UPI)

"Unfair," C. Malone Tells Judge

DURHAM-Legal circles have been buzzing ever since the trial of more than 81 alleged black bootleggers began here last week over the attempt of C. C. Malone, Jr., who represented many of the defendants.

The attorney pulled a surprise move on the District Court when he filed a motion to squash the indictments on the ground that the Durham A B C Police Department, headed by Tom Wilkie, has persistently practiced discrimination by concentrating on blacks and failing to hire a single black in the drive against the illegal sale of whiskey.

Tom Wilkie, the symbol of his relentlessness, was the object of serious grilling by Malone. The chief law enforcement officer agreed that even though (See BOOTLEGGERS, P. 2)

ONE KILLED AFTER TWO STATE COPS WOUNDED - New Brunswick, N.J.: Ronnie Simmons (l) of Columbia, S. C. lies in ambulance Nov. 28 after he was fatally shot in a brief gun battle with New Jersey State Police. The shoot out followed an incident in nearby Woodbridge Township, in which Simmons and two other suspects reportedly shot and wounded two state troopers when their car was stopped for a routine inspection on the New Jersey Turnpike. The second of the three suspects, Gary L. Owens (right photo), 19, also of Columbia, is shown with his hands cuffed behind his back shortly after he was taken into custody. (UPI)

Report Calls For Abolition Of Judges' Discretionary Powers

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. - A Quaker-sponsored report released last week, calls for the abolition of the discretionary powers of judges and parole officers, which are used "to justify secret procedures and unreviewable decisions" that discriminate against minorities and the poor.

Discretionary powers have also failed in their purpose of promoting rehabilitation, the report says, and should be replaced with a system which "reduces the number of acts which are crimes" and then enforces them uniformly so that "all those convicted of the same crime receive the same sentence."

A panel of 16 criminologists, lawyers, educators, ex-convicts -- including one current prisoner -- issued the report following a year and a half of deliberation. The panel was sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, and the 173-page report, entitled "Struggle for Justice" has been published by Hill and Wang of New York.

The authors challenge the work of generations of reformers who sought to build rehabilitation programs into the court and prison system. "After more than a century of persistent failure, this reformist prescription is bankrupt. The legacy of a century of reform effort is an increasingly repressive penal system and overcrowded courts dispensing assembly-line justice."

"The mixture of rehabilitation and punishment," the report says, "gives a humane veneer to a barbaric system. We find no convincing evidence that the present approach at its best succeeds in rehabilitating offenders, even by its own criteria."

"When we punish the person and simultaneously try to treat him, we hurt the individual more profoundly and more permanently than if we merely imprison him for a specific length of time," the report says.

The prison system is intended for punishment and should be used specifically for that purpose, although "only when a compelling social need has been demonstrated and when less drastic remedies have been exhausted." Punishment should be clearly defined and the human and civil rights of prisoners respected, the report says.

Treatment should be separate from punishment, the report contends, with prisoner participation in a range of medical, psychiatric, and educational services "truly voluntary and available to all." Prison number 26.

Who is your choice to win the Democratic nomination as president for the upcoming election? Miss Pauline Carlton, Durham "I would favor Edward Kennedy as the Democratic choice but he says he will not run in the upcoming election. Therefore, I think Edmund Muskie will win the nomination for the party." Mr. Johnson Kearney, Greensboro "My choice would be Ted Kennedy. As much as I hate to say it, I think Muskie will win the party nomination. McGovern is still a likely candidate." Mr. Bill Mosley Asheville "I was very much in favor of Edmund Muskie until he made the statement that he didn't think a Black man could win as vice-president. Right now, I would have to say I am in favor of McGovern." Mrs. Otalene Little, Raleigh "I would be in favor of anybody other than Edmund Muskie after the statement he made (See THEY SAY, P. 2)

Declares Evers Was Mistreated

(Editor's Note: The following information was released by Gilbert Jones, Co-ordinator of the coverage of Mississippi elections last month): NEW YORK, N.Y. - "It will no doubt come as a surprise to many members of the press to learn that most of the black candidates who sought elective office in Mississippi on November 2, including Mayor Charles Evers -- the candidate for Governor -- are convinced of widespread fraud, outright vote stealing and extensive physical intimidation.

"Your surprise will stem, most likely, from the fact that the national press coverage falls -- with the notable exception of the New York Times -- to make, at most, a passing reference to these incidents.

"There are many reasons for this journalistic failure, into which we hope to delve at a later date. Now we are faced with an even greater problem: how to reverse the verdict delivered by the press...

"In the weeks ahead, federal court challenges will be initiated to require new elections in seven (See VOTING FRAUD, P. 2)

Black Schools Cited For Producing Gifted Students

BALTIMORE, Md. - William M. Boyd, II, executive director of the Educational Policies Center in New York City, praised black institutions of higher learning for the role they have played in developing excellent students.

Addressing the 37th annual Honors Day Convocation at Morgan State College recently, Boyd blasted those critics who claim that "black schools make up the tailend of the academic procession as headline-grabbers." He declared that black schools actually educate their students better because black institutions are primarily established with the preferences and needs of black students in mind.

Interrupt Big March To Raleigh

GREENVILLE -- A cost to the Piedmont march in protest to alleged police brutality in Pitt County, which began here Monday at St. Gabriel's Catholic Church on W. Fifth St., enroute to Raleigh, has been interrupted twice by the arrest of many Blacks, including Golden Frinks, field secretary for SC-LC. Despite the large number of arrests, Frinks vows the march will go on.

On Monday, Greenville police arrested 62 marchers and (See MARCHERS, P. 2)

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column or feature is produced in the public interest with a aim towards eliminating its contents. Numerous individuals have requested that they be given the "consideration of overlooking their listing on the police blotter. This we would like to do. However, it is not our position to be judge or jury. We merely publish the facts as we find them reported by the arresting officers. To keep out of the Crime Beat columns, merely means not being registered by a police officer in reporting his findings while on duty. So simply keep off the "blotter" and you won't be in The Crime Beat.

THROWS KNIFE AT WIFE Mrs. Gwendolyn Ann Alston, 20, 1304 Walnut Street, told Officer J. W. Tew at 3:29 p.m. last Wednesday, that she and her husband, Jesse Cleveland Alston, 20, 1127 S.
