

Two Havurah Summer Institutes To Be Held

The National Havurah Committee has announced that, due to the unprecedented turnout at last summer's Institute, it will hold two Havurah Study Institutes this summer. The first will take place July 4-10 at the University of Hartford, West Hartford, CT, and the second August 8-14 at the Douglass Campus of Rutgers University, in New Brunswick, NJ.

The Havurah Institutes, sponsored by the National Havurah Committee, have, since 1980, drawn people from across the United States and Canada to share an extraordinary week of study and celebration. It is an event at which Jews of many different viewpoints —

Orthodox, Conservative, Reform and Reconstructionist; members of synagogues and of independent havurot, and unaffiliated Jews as well — can spend a week together in a communal study of Jewish texts, history, literature, philosophy, art, politics and social issues. Only a few of the courses at the Institute require advanced knowledge or language skills, but all presume a spirit of openness and a serious desire to explore Jewish thought and Jewish living.

Courses at the Havurah Institute are taught by some of the most creative and searching teachers of Jewish subjects in the United States, Canada and Israel, who share a commitment to the havurah style of study. "Only at the Havurah Institute" commented Sharon Strassfeld, Chairperson of the July Institute, "is every participant a student, including the teachers. Teachers and students alike come to learn from each
