

Gan Israel Day Camp.....Smashing Success

This June saw the opening of Camp Gan Israel Day Camp in Charlotte. It was sponsored by Lubavitch of North Carolina. Mariashi Groner, director of the camp, is happy to report that the first year was better than expected.

The campers were treated to special trips, first was Carowinds and then Discovery Place, roller skating and horse back riding. They also enjoyed a trip to the River Banks Zoo in Columbia, SC.

The Jewish spirit was felt at all times. Campers studied blessings over food and learned basic Jewish principles of what it means to be a Jew.

"What a proud feeling to be Jewish," said one young camper who won a prize for studying P'sukim of Torah.

Yossi and Gedalyah Shemtov came from New York to be head staff and boy did they devote themselves to the campers. The children were taught how to bake Challah and excelled in arts and crafts depicting Jewish life, like the Kiddush cup and the Shabbat candles.

Said one mother, "I just can't get over the happy faces of the children, their excitement and joy. It is if we were back in Israel." Said another,

"Now my child does not stop singing 'Moise Mouse' who always eats Kosher meat and does not mix it with cheese."

Camp began every day with a line up at the Lubavitch Residence followed by learning classes. The days were filled with trips, sports, and arts and crafts. The children enjoyed healthy nutritious lunches.

"We are thankful to Walter and Elizabeth Klein for allowing the camp to use their swimming pool," said Mariashi Groner. "It added to the joy and excitement of camp."

Ann Gotlib

PLEASE HELP

Ann Gotlib, a thirteen year old Russian Jewish immigrant, was abducted from Bashford Manor Mall on June 1, 1983 in Louisville, Kentucky. The first anniversary of Ann's disappearance has passed, and still there has been no sign of her.

An ANN GOTLIB SEARCH FUND has been set up by the Temple Sisterhood to raise money to run newspaper ads nationwide with Ann's picture. The new ads will offer a $15,000 reward "for proven whereabouts only" of Ann. People with information are asked to write: P.O. Box 1467, Louisville, KY 40201. They can also call a toll-free number, 800-342-0821. The cost to run this ad statewide in one newspaper's Sunday edition can vary from $200.00 to $400.00, depending on the individual newspaper rates.

Funds are desperately needed! WE NEED YOUR HELP! All donations are tax deductible.

Contributions should be sent to:

---National Safety Sabbath Kits---

"All religious communities are invited to join together to help reduce injuries, save lives and live out the truth of their religious convictions," said Leon Urben, manager of the National Safety Council's religious activities department, in announcing the seventh annual observance of National Safety Sabbath set for early next year.

National Safety Sabbath, sponsored and coordinated by the Council, is an ecumenical celebration that brings worshippers of all faiths to a fuller understanding of safety. It will be observed February 14-17, 1985, in conjunction with the Valentine's Day weekend. "Caring for the well-being of another person is probably the greatest gift of love you can show someone," Urben said.

This year's campaign will have child passenger safety, poison prevention and exercise safety as the areas of emphasis. Urben said campaign kits, to be available in the fall, will contain posters, handouts, planning guides and other information.

Congregations interested in receiving a free kit can write to the Religious Activities Department, National Safety Council, 444 North Michigan, Chicago, Illinois 60611.
