Fundraiser Slated

The JCC will be holding a "Silent Auction" as its major fundraiser of the year at the Marriott Hotel (near I-77) on Saturday, October 20. Over 50 items will be auctioned including a week's vacation at a luxurious condominium, an ultralight airplane, appliances, dinners at local restaurants and much more. Tickets, sale to begin this month, will serve as the price of admission for a complete dinner and dancing preceding the auction itself. The various items to be auctioned-off will be displayed throughout the evening, enabling individuals to make opening bids from the time they arrive at the Marriott. Further details will be available in the next issue of the Jewish News.

Arts Day

Thanks to volunteers and paid staff alike, children who participated in the Jewish Community Center's Arts Day had a wonderful afternoon. Children had the opportunity to paint murals, to build wooden structures, to make plaster casts and to tie-dye t-shirts. At the end of the afternoon, a laundry line of drying, multi-colored t-shirts hung across the Art Day work-space. The hot afternoon was topped off by deliciously cool popsicles.

JCC Hosts Summer Pops

On July 19, the Jewish Community presented a performance by the Charlotte Summer Pops. Over 120 members gathered to hear this very exhilarating concert. Both young and old enjoyed the music which ranged from classical to a Michael Jackson medley. The evening was topped off with make-your-own sundaes.

current status of the project. Following lunch, which the JCC will provide, a film produced by the Jewish Welfare Board will be shown. In the afternoon each of the various committees will meet to discuss their role in the process and assess the goals and objectives for their designated area.

In addition to the 22 committees, members of the JCC and Foundation boards, and presidents of major Jewish organizations in Charlotte will be invited to attend the institute. This event and the phase-in process to follow will positively channel the community's energy in its quest for a Jewish Community Center of the highest quality.

Fall Celebration

On Sunday, September 23, the Jewish Community Center will have a celebration of the fall equinox with a picnic and hike.

The entire family is invited to bring a dish to pass, their own eating utensils, and a pair of walking shoes. The park has several lovely nature trails.

Shelter Number One (next to the main parking lot at the end of the Park road) is reserved for the Jewish Community Center's group from 2:30 p.m. until sunset. Plan to share a meal around 4 p.m. Latta Plantation Park is located off Beatties Ford Road, about a 30 minute drive north of Charlotte.
