

JCC Votes "Yes"

With no dissenting votes, the JCC membership at its April 25 annual meeting empowered its board to finalize and sign the Joint Venture Agreements.

This historic referendum made the Center the first of the five institutions to officially enter the project. On May 16 the Beth El annual membership meeting will consider a similar approving vote. (At press time, on April 28, the Hebrew Academy signed the Joint Venture Agreements.)

Bob Abel was aided in answering some questions by Mark Bernstein, who authored the Joint Venture and Lease Agreements in conjunction with the Presidents' Council and Harry Swimmer, General Campaign Chairman. Harry explained that the goal for the project is $5.5 million. He continued on to say that $2.3 million had already been pledged from approximately 40 families. Swimmer continued on to say that he has begun forming his Campaign Cabinet and that he hopes to have the campaign completed in three to four months.

Temple Beth El O.K.'s Agreement

On May 16 Temple Beth El held their annual congregational meeting and at the same time empowered its board to finalize and sign the Joint Venture Agreement for the Foundation of the Jewish Community. As of press time this makes three of the participating institutions going in on the venture. The JCC and the Hebrew Academy approved it the latter part of April.

Temple Israel Votes "Yes"

"The vote is almost three to one in favor."

As President Jerry Levin spoke these historic words the crowded I.D. Blumenthal Hall broke into applause. The membership of Temple Israel had just approved the Joint Venture Agreements and agreed to full participant status in the community Project.

With this vote, all of the participating institutions have now indicated acceptance of their participation in the Project.

In the words of Rabbi Richard Rocklin of Temple Israel, "This is the time; this is the moment. Let's do it!"
