Ashendorf/Citron Memorial Concert to Feature Guest Cellist

Internationally celebrated cellist Claudio Jaffe will be this year's featured performer for the Ashendorf/Citron Memorial Concert to be held in the I.D. Blumenthal Hall at Temple Israel on Sun., October 11 at 8 p.m. The concert will include compositions by Bach, Villa-Lobos, Ravel and Schostakovich.

The Ashendorf/Citron Memorial Concert is an annual event given in memory of Rosalie Citron Ashendorf and Samuel I. Citron. The Ashendorf/Citron Memorial Fund of Temple Israel is presenting this prestigious concert free for the joy and entertainment of our community.

Jaffe, 25, received his early education and training in his native Sao Paulo, Brazil. Coming to the U.S., he matriculated at Yale University where he earned his bachelors degree and his masters from Yale School of Music. Since the age of 8, the list of competitions in which Mr. Jaffe has been awarded first prize is extensive. In 1983, in the Debut Competition sponsored by The Young Musicians Foundation, he was awarded not only the Gregor Piatigorsky Memorial "Cello Prize as Top Cellist", but also the H. Spencer Nilson Recital Award and the 1983 Debut Competition Award to the Best Competitor in all categories.

The step from competition to the concert stage was an easy one. In 1983, Jaffe made his New York debut at Town Hall as part of the select Debut Series. Of his debut, Tim Page of The New York Times said, "Mr. Jaffe has what it takes to become an important artist: taste, technique, musicianship and contagious youthful enthusiasm."

Accompanying Mr. Jaffe on piano will be Charlotte's own international artist, who recently returned with The Charlotte Symphony Orchestra from their European tour, pianist Mark Tysinger.

Cantor Kestenbaum To Serve Temple Israel For New Years

Cantor Ray Kestenbaum of New York has been appointed to chant the Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur Services at Temple Israel. Hazzan Kestenbaum officiated with Rabbi Marc Wilson for eight years at Congregation Shearith Israel in Atlanta when Rabbi Wilson was Spiritual Leader in Atlanta.

Hazzan Kestenbaum is an alumnus of Yeshiva University and of Columbia University. He studied "hazzanut," cantorial repertoire, under the brother of the late renowned Cantor Kwartin and at Yeshiva University's Cantorial Institute.

He is the year-round cantor at Highland Park Conservative Temple and Center in Highland Park, NY, under the rabbinical leadership of Rabbi Yakov Hilsenrath. Cantor Kestenbaum's style emphasizes congregational singing and melody. His tunes are a blend of "nusach," traditional Jewish holiday music, scored modern choral pieces and expressive Israeli, Sephardic and chassidic themes.

A soloist and choral singer with the famous Zamir Chorale in the early '70s, he has a fluent command of the liturgy as well as Biblical and modern Hebrew. For the past three years, Ray Kestenbaum has produced and hosted CHIDON, a weekly call-in radio quiz program focusing on Biblical history, Jewish music and current events. Aired over WNYM, 1330 AM, New York, the popular show is billed as "radio's Jewish non-trivial call-in quiz." When he is not singing or conducting his Torah quiz show, he is busy with his own advertising and marketing agency, serving numerous Jewish organizational clients.
