

UJA Singles Mission — More Than Just Another Tour to Israel

Jewish singles will climb the heights of Masada, discover the Old City of Jerusalem and explore pioneering life in the settlements of the mountainous Galilee when they visit Israel with the National United Jewish Appeal Hatikvah Mission this summer.

Geared for single men and women between the ages of 25-40, the mission will visit Israel on a specially planned encounter with the country and its people from July 30-August 9.

Under the leadership of Chairmen David Winick (San Diego), Lolly Friedman (Houston) and Scott Miller (Dallas), the mission will be a unique opportunity for commitment to Israel and the Jewish community while sharing an Israel trip with other singles.

Participants will meet decision makers, talk with Israelis from all walks of life and have an opportunity to see first-hand the social welfare programs funded by UJA/Community campaigns.

Other highlights will include visits to Project Renewal neighborhoods, a kibbutz, and an Israeli absorption center for new immigrants. A special feature of the mission will be discussions with Israelis prominent in politics, business and education, as well as with single Israeli professionals.

Participants will visit Old

Jaffa and the Dead Sea, and will celebrate Shabbat at the Western Wall. Special interest tours of the Knesset, Israeli industry and archaeological excavations will also be offered.

Mission participants may extend their stay and/or stop off in Europe before their return to the United States. Total cost of the basic mission package is $2,200 including airfare, land costs and first-class hotels. For further information, contact Mike Minkin, executive director, Charlotte Jewish Federation, 366-5007, or Hillary Charap, UJA National office, (212) 818-9100 or Susan Skibell, UJA Dallas office, (214) 644-3200.
