

Don't Know Beans About Judaism?

Then the Fundamentals of Judaism Series is for You

This twelve-week course will delve into the key aspects of Jewish consciousness. Each class will give you a deeper understanding of the issue discussed in a way that is practical and relevant to your life, and designed to allow for questions most important to you.

Meet great people, get some snacks, enjoy a cup of coffee and experience the power of Jewish wisdom.

Topics to be discussed:
Six Misconceptions in Judaism: Exploring Judaism can mean unlearning mistaken ideas as much as it means learning new ones.

Pleasure: The key to happiness is to appreciate what you have. Sounds simple. So why are so many people unhappy? Get the tools you need for tapping into unlimited richness, pleasure and joy.

ABC's of Judaism: All systems are built on fundamental principles. The building blocks of the English language are the ABCs. So if you want to master reading and writing, you have to first learn the alphabet. Judaism too has its "ABCs" upon which everything is based.

Jewish History in a Nutshell: "Those who don't remember the past are bound to repeat it." Jewish History is in many ways World History. Understanding the Torah was divinely written and could not have been written by men.

Free Will - Our Greatest Power: Free will is a uniquely human endeavor that spells the difference between life and death. To maximize life, learn the tools for effective free will.

Back to the Source: "To The Source" is an introductory class to the oral law. Contemporary issues are examined through the eyes of classical works, including the Talmud, working up through modern day responsa. Each subject addressed concludes with a clear Torah approach to the issue.

Women in Judaism: It's time to lay to rest the canard that Judaism views women as inferior to men.

Love and Marriage: The basic building block for marriage is love. The love you create will affect the health of your children, too.

events that have touched the Jewish people reflect in the way Judaism is practiced today and the world's perception of it.

Who Wrote the Torah?: Bible critics argue that the Torah was written by various men and later compiled by a proctor. They also point out various historic discrepancies in the text. We will prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the

More Than 60 Individuals in Charlotte Studying over the Phone

Join the most exciting Jewish learning program in North America. With over 8,000 partners already participating, Partners in Torah has approached the Charlotte Torah Center to bring the program to our city.

So, what is Partners in Torah? Partners in Torah provides men and women who have an interest in Jewish study - but may lack the self-motivation or academic background - with their own personal telephone "mentor," to study any topic in Judaism of mutual interest. Partners study approximately one hour a week at a mutually agreed upon time.

Expert staff match Jews who want to know more about Judaism with Jews who want to share their knowledge. Although two people may be matched because one person has expressed an interest in a particular subject while the other person has a level of proficiency in that same area, the nature of their relationship is peer-to-peer, creating a comfortable and non-threatening learning environment.

Partners in Torah attracts Jews from all walks of life spanning the complete spectrum of Jewish affiliation and educational backgrounds.

With your personal Torah trainer, your mind will enjoy an incredible workout. In just one hour a week you may learn to read Hebrew, analyze Biblical texts, or take a dip in the vast and brilliant ocean of the Talmud. Explore Judaism from the comfort of your own home at a time of day that's convenient for you. No topic is off limits, no question too outrageous.

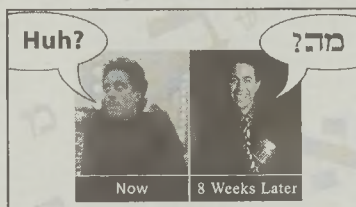

This program is free of charge (even the phone call is sponsored by the IDT phone company).
