

Attention, Ladies!!

Join Us Each Wednesday in December

For the

Joan Miley Trio

Singer Songwriter Guitarist

Joan Miley spent her formative years in Southern Pines, North Carolina, with her musically talented family. Her father is a songwriter, her mother and sister are singers and her younger brother plays drums.

She picked up the guitar at age 12 and taught herself to play Beatles' tunes, following in the footsteps of guitar-playing sister, Susan. Joan started writing music almost immediately and during the interim played in a bluegrass band. She will tell you that she has been inspired by many artists but that the most influential were Joni Mitchell, Ricki Lee Jones, James Taylor and Joan Armatrading.

Joan refers to her music as NEW FOLK . . . a semi-blues style that is based around words and music that she has written. Her repertoire consists of well over a hundred songs that will get you a-shuckin' and a-jivin' to Latin rhythms, rock n' roll, country, reggae and love songs that will rhythmically pull at your heart strings!

Currently, Joan resides in Charlotte, North Carolina, and is performing with a bass guitarist, and a percussionist/background vocalist. You can catch them playing at Manfred's each Wednesday in December.
