"Shirley Q" drag not acceptable

Black/White Men Together finds Shirley Q Liquor intolerable

The National Association of Black and White Men Together, Inc. opposes the "black-face" performances of female impersonator Chuck Knipp. Knipp, a white gay man from Mississippi performing in blackface makeup as "Shirley Q. Liquor" — currently touring the U.S. Knipp describes Ms. Liquor as an "ignunt" unmarried woman, raising 22 "chirren" on public assistance.

NABWMT National Co-Chair Wendell Reid said, "We find the Shirley Q. Liquor performance objectionable on three fronts:

- Negative image of women This performance resurrects distorted racist caricatures common to the blackface performances that became popular in nineteenth century American vaudeville.
- Negative image of women The Shirley Q. Liquor character is constructed on a negative and degrading image of women.

• Classist stereotype The character is based on the classist stereotype that people who need public assistance are fundamentally lazy.

On all three counts, this act offends current sensibilities of what is appropriate."

"Although we recognize Mr. Knipp's right to free speech, the owners of the performance venues where he is being scheduled have the right to refuse this kind of speech," said NABWMT National Co-Chair Paul Cloutier. "Particularly given the LGBT community's collective experience with heterosexist oppression, we call on establishment owners in our community not to extract monetary profit from such a racist, sexist and classist performance."

In opposing the Shirley Q. Liquor performance of Chuck Knipp, the National Association of Black and White Men Together joins more than 60 community organizations that have taken a similar position.

principal means by which negotiations and communications take place.

Collaborative law is not for every couple. In cases where one or both parties have psychological disabilities or when domestic violence or substance abuse is an issue, collaborative law is not a viable option. And clients who want revenge or a court forum for telling their stories are not good candidates for collaborative law.

Is collaborative law for you?

For the collaborative law process to succeed, you must be willing to:

- behave in a respectful and ethical manner toward the other party.
- set aside bad feelings and work together toward a resolution.
- compromise.

Barbara Hollingsworth is an attorney in Harrisburg, NC. She is trained in collaborative law and has been a certified mediator since 1995.
