

APPARENTLY, I'VE DEVELOPED A CERTAIN REPUTATION IN THE COURTROOM.

True, taking a medical malpractice or personal injury case all the way to court is never easy. So, many attorneys simply try to avoid it. Trouble is, that may or may not lead to the best outcome for the client. Me, I relish a good legal battle when necessary. And, yes, I can be rather dogged in pursuing my clients' claims.

But I pick my fights carefully. I accept a very limited number of cases per year and delegate nothing to junior attorneys.

If you have a serious medical or wrongful death case that could benefit from this kind of determination, let's talk. My name is Bob Karney and my wife says I look considerably nicer than my courtroom demeanor suggests.
