CHARLOTTE

It's a sell out

CHARLOTTE — Boys and girls, it's official. Drag Bingo was a sell out. In fact, the event was out of tickets within 30 minutes after opening up sales.

However, the "Matt & Ramona Show" on 107.9 The Link — one of the presenting sponsors — decided to auction off their reserved table to the highest bidder. On Nov. 20, Zuni Johnson and Jason McCraw were notified that they were the lucky winners. They got to hang out with Matt and Ramona during the evening's festivities.

The monies raised in the auction bid went to benefit the Regional AIDS Interfaith Network.

Don't be tardy for the party!

CHARLOTTE — On Dec. 11, Hartigan's Irish Pub, 601 S. Cedar St., #100, will host its annual LESBAPALOOZA to raise funds for local charities.

This event will feature Ang Medlin upstairs from 8-9 p.m., Crys Matthews upstairs from 9-10 p.m. and Rodie Ray and her band headlining in the basement from 11 p.m.-1 a.m.

The Battle Women's Shelter will be the recipient of this year's fundraising efforts.

Downstairs cover is $5.

EASTERN

Happy, happy!

HOPE MILLS — Join the Fayetteville LGBT Meetup Group as they celebrate their one-year anniversary on Dec. 5 at Sammio's, 3057 N. Main St., at 6 p.m.

The dutch-treat dinner will include plenty of time to chat.

ASO continues to survive

GREENVILLE — In a featured article in November in The Daily Reflector, Pitt County AIDS Service Organization (PiCASO) shared that it was considering closing due to more than a 30 percent budget shortfall.

PiCASO is 18-years-old. According to the article, in 2008 it operated with $130,000. Board President Aaron Lucier said that they were looking at ways to keep the ASO open, despite losing $25,000 from the United Way of Pitt County, among others. A board decision is expected soon if the shortfall can't be met. They are currently at a $40,000 deficit. Not only has it had difficulties with funds, it has also had issues with stocking its food pantry.

PiCASO has already sent out 1,000 fundraising letters to those who were previous contributors. Unfortunately, they had not raised enough from that request to pay for the postage.

According to PiCASO's website, these are ways that the community can support them right now: Contribute; host a fundraiser; volunteer; become a donor/group to provide office space for the agency next year (It will help the agency cut over $700 a month in costs. It needs a space with several private offices and preferably a direct entrance to the space.); and can goods and personal hygiene items for our food pantry.

Spaulding makes Out 100

DURHAM — Pam Spaulding has been blogging her way to political and social stardom since she began publishing tidbits of her life, thoughts and insight at Pam's House Blend just five years ago.

Since then, her blog has grown into one of the most heavily trafficked gay blogs in the nation. With her team of citizen journalists, Spaulding documents LGBT politics, progressive news and local and state issues other national news outlets sometimes miss.

She's honored in this year's Out 100, a list of some of the nation's most influential culture and society movers and shakers.

"I love reader feedback, including the batshit crazy right," Spaulding told the national magazine. "The best way to blunt the hate is to embrace its lunacy, so I display the quotes as badges of honor."

Another North Carolina native, Chris Hughes, is also featured. From Hickory, Hughes went on to co-found Facebook and work as Barack Obama's social networking guru during his campaign for the White House.
