

9 Boxing, Wrestling Titles Are Vacated By Graduations

By CADET EDWARD MADVAY

Departure of the first three battalions for primary flight training has riddled the ranks of the regimental champion leather throwers and grunt-and-groan artists.

As a result of graduations, including today's, five boxing and four wrestling crowns have been vacated.

When the First Battalion Cloudbusters moved on to Naval Reserve Aviation Bases, Aug. 22, the 130-pound titlist, William Phillips, Jr. (Vindicator), Troy, N. Y., and the 135-pound king, James Maloney (Helldiver), Worcester, Mass., shoved off for Squantum, Mass. A third fisticuff champ, 151-pound Francesco Fiorentino (Vindicator), Long Island, N. Y., headed for flight training at New Orleans, La.

Two more crowns were relinquished Sept. 5, when Gilbert Zuccarini (Skyrocket), Scranton, Pa., ruler of the 158-pound class, and Irving Jontow (Wildcat), New York, N. Y., were transferred to Peru, Ind., and New Orleans, La., respectively, for the next phase of Naval aviation training.

The only regimental boxing champs remaining at Chapel Hill are William F. McGrath (Skyrocket), Lawrence, N. Y., in the 145-pound division; Nicholas Budnowski (Helldiver), Albany, N. Y., in the 175-pound class; and Heavyweight Edward Kromka (Skyrocket), Boonton, N. Y.

To date four of the cadets who wrestled their way to the top in the recent mat tournament have departed for flight training.

These are: Robert Y. Brown (Mustang), Sandy Hook, N. Y., 145-pound king, and John S. Poor (another Mustang), New York, N. Y., 158-pound titlist, who went to the Reserve Base at St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 5; William E. Levering (Vindicator), Rocky River, O., 151-pounder, and Albert C. Schacheman (Mariner), Union City, N. J., who were transferred today to Philadelphia, Pa., and Norman, Okla., respectively.

Regimental wrestling champs remaining at Chapel Hill are Francis T. Wilson (Catalina), Winnetka, Ill., 135-pound division; Harold Keating (Kingfisher), Rochester, N. Y., 175-pound division; and Heavyweight Robert M. Blakney (Buffalo), Williamstown, Mass.

Naval Cadets to See Carolina Football As Guests of University

When North Carolina's Tar Heels trot out on the field to do battle with Wake Forest a week from today in the season's opener for both clubs, the Pre-Flight cadets will see a team determined to make the fans forget about last season's dismal record. On display before the spectators next Saturday will be an inexperienced squad of an unknown quality, but—judging from pre-season workouts—one with spirit and drive without which any fighting force cannot hope to succeed.

Of the nine contests to be played, four will be played at home and five on the road.

Under special arrangements completed recently, the entire cadet corps will be guests of the University Athletic Association at the home games against Wake Forest, South Carolina, and Rice. At the traditional Duke-Carolina contest, arrangements have been made to admit them at a specially reduced service men's rate. At these Carolina games the cadets will occupy the final two sections on the south side of Kenan directly next to the student section.

Under a reciprocal plan, the Carolina students will be enabled to see the two Pre-Flight home contests on Dec. 5 and Dec. 12 with their regular pass book tickets. At these two games the cadets will occupy the regular student sections in Kenan while the final two end sections on the same side will be

Cloud Buster Nine Closes Season With Hot Win Record

By CADET H. WESLEY BOGLE

Fourteen victories in nineteen starts was the impressive record compiled by the Cloudbuster varsity baseball team during the past season.

Lieut. W. G. Killinger, former coach at West Chester (Pa.) State Teachers College, and once a member of the New York Yankees, utilized potent hitting and effective pitching in molding the Pre-Flight squad into a winning combination.

Outfielder Morris A. Deutsch, former New York University athlete from Long Island, N. Y., was the leading slugger with a batting average of .442, followed closely by Second Baseman Harry Harrison, former Penn State star from Philadelphia, who batted at a .421 clip.

M. G. Hanly of Garden City, N. Y., and Robert "Ace" Williams of Montclair, N. J., each turned in four victories on the mound while E. H. Clark of Lewiston, N. Y., notched three victories.

In the last home game of the season the Cloudbusters slashed out 17 hits in defeating the Alamance County All-Stars by a score of 19-0 behind the 6-hit pitching of Hanly and Robert Meeker of Utica, N. Y.

Know America's Planes

DOUGLAS TBD-1 TORPEDO BOMBER

Shown here by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America are silhouette views of a formidable air weapon—the Douglas TBD-1 torpedo plane, known to the U. S. Navy as the "Devastator." Heavily armed this low-wing monoplane is carrier-based. The leading edge has a scarcely noticeable taper, though a pronounced taper is noted on the trailing edge. The tail plane is tapered sharply on leading edge and the trailing edge of the rudder is curved. The three-place "Devastator" is powered by an air-cooled Wright Cyclone engine.

Cadet Lawyer

An air traffic control operator before coming here, Cadet Sidney Saxon, formerly of the Bronx, New York, received his law degree in 1938, and not only practiced but wrote law before his interest in aviation led him into Naval aviation.

Civilian Pilot

A fledgling flier before entering Pre-Flight training was Cadet James R. Anderson, jr. of Kenosha, Wis., who had 40 hours of private flying experience in civilian life. Anderson is a graduate of Los Alamos Ranch School, New Mexico, and Yale University.
